PREFACE

The following pages attempt to give a comprehensive record of the Class of 1900. The completeness of the several biographies is of necessity largely dependent upon the extent of the information which the members themselves were willing to furnish. The biographies, compiled during the year of the Decennial Reunion, carry the lives of most of the men to the following year.

To all of the men who—some of them under mild compulsion—furnished the information concerning their lives and work which gives to this book its interest and value the Secretary desires to express his appreciation; and particularly to those who assisted with the illustrations and special articles. Especial acknowledgment is cordially tendered to Mr. Edwin Rogers Embree, Director of the Class Secretaries Bureau at the University, and his efficient staff, who assumed and faithfully carried out the routine work of gathering and compiling the biographies and attended to the distribution of the book.

The office of Secretary, involving frequent correspondence with the various members of the Class during the past twelve years, and particularly the work on the preparation of this volume, has been interesting and valuable, but other duties make it necessary, for the Secretary and for the best interests of the Class, for him to turn over the work to another member of the Class who can devote to it the time and attention it demands. Following a precedent in several other classes, the Secretary with the publication of this record, which is sent to every member, tenders to the Class his resignation.

GEORGE N. WHITTLESEY.

THE 1900 TRIENNIAL GROUP

REUNIONS AT NEW HAVEN

TRIENNIAL

True to her reputation as the largest and one of the liveliest of Yale classes, Nineteen Hundred was on hand from Saturday, June 20, to the following Thursday for the Triennial celebration. Fully two hundred men returned in all. Fifteen or twenty of the early comers met on Sunday afternoon for a short prayer meeting in Dwight Hall.

The first excitement provided by the Committee was the securing of uniforms. These were effective and comfortable,—blue Norfolk jackets with broad white collars, white belts and buttons, streamers on the arm, with the figures 1900, white hats, duck trousers, "Tommy Atkins" canes and small blue balloons.

On Monday morning an impromptu baseball alias football game was hotly contested on the Campus between 1900 and the black-robed, mortar-boarded Seniors, a hundred men on a side, and half a dozen Ninety-Seven veterans, feeble and corpulent, posing as umpires. Nineteen Hundred won, at least Nineteen Hundred stayed longest on the field. A less numerous team met Ninety-Seven at Yale Field in the afternoon.

The Class meeting was called to order by E. A. Park, Chairman of the Triennial Committee, at headquarters at 11.30, Tuesday morning, amid a storm of hailstones from giant torpedoes and other varieties of applause. The report of the Class Secretary showed the loss by death since graduation to have been nearly as phenomenally small as during the period in College. Of the 355 who entered in 1896—breaking all records to date—only one died during the four years. Of the 326 on the roll of graduation, four only had died in the three succeeding years: Franklin, Ely, Bristol and Payton. The report further showed that the Class had forty-one wives and thirteen children, eight boys and five girls. The Class Fund, with additions received at the reunion, amounted to $1,205.57.

The following committees were appointed: Auditing Committee (at the Secretary's request), E. B. Greene, Fackler. Sexennial Committee (the Triennial Committee declining to serve again): Shepherd, Chairman; Leavitt, Carter, Leary, F. B. Adams and T. B. Clarke; Committee on Resolutions for those who have died: Hill, Coffin, Weston, Hartwell, Patterson. During the meeting, the Class was represented at the general alumni meeting by A. D. Leavitt.

Before marching to the Field, the Class was photographed by the official photographer. Colt's band from Hartford then appeared, and led the way around the Campus and out Chapel Street to the Field, the leader being ably assisted by Tommy Clarke and Shiras Campbell. At the Track House the Committee had in readiness a new skin for the Class, through which every man put his head, and a huge sea serpent or rain-serpent writhed over the field with a savage pair of open jaws and nearly two hundred heads, to the terror and, some say, to the admiration of the crowd and the brief, exceeding brief dismay, of Harvard. As between sitting in two inches of water on the open stands and standing in a like depth on the field, the latter was the favorite choice and Nineteen Hundred watched the game occasionally, cheering lustily on slightest pretexts, dancing clogs and cake walks, running mile races around the track and in general doing everything but keeping dry, and that didn't matter. A number of brilliant and startling "stunts" were held in readiness, but refused to appear in the rain.

Tuesday evening afforded to many a surprise and to all an abiding satisfaction. In the large hall of the Young Men's Republican Club, decorated with national and Yale flags, and plants, the Committee had provided for a good dinner and a good list of speeches. This was not the surprise. But to those who knew of Triennial and other reunions of other classes, it was surprising that with all the noise, which was deafening, and the good fellowship, which was universal and hearty, there was no indication of the inebriation which makes it impossible to finish a dinner or to make or listen to speeches. P. A. Rockefeller acted as toastmaster. W. R. Maloney, Jr., on behalf of the Cup Committee presented the Cup to the young son of T. D. Newmyer as the Class Boy. The boy and Mrs. Newmyer were present and both were most cordially welcomed. In responding to the presentation speech, "Tommy," Senior, won the hearts and wild applause of all when, holding up the Cup with its powerful contents, he promised that by the time he "passed away," Thomas, Jr., would have been trained to regard the Cup as a sacred trust, etc. He also remarked that 1900 was the greatest and best class ever graduated from Yale, as he well knew, having tried three.

Hopkins was called upon for a speech. He struck what all felt was the keynote of the reunion when he said he could see that this was not only a reuniting but a closer uniting than had ever before existed in 1900, making the largest Yale class more than ever a unit. Swan reported for the 1900 men who had been at Harvard, that their acquaintance with Harvard men made them acknowledge that the latter were better fellows than they had supposed possible, and yet had emphasized the fact that Yale men were still, in his way of thinking, the best.

President Hadley's welcome voice addressed the Class through the lips of Harry Wells, and Kenneth Bruce, the Class poet, read a poem, "A Rally." The applause followed the first line so incessantly and thunderously that few heard any more:

A RALLY

Throw wide the gates, dear Mother Yale,
The boys return with banner bright,
To hear each comrade's stirring tale,
To meet within thy halls to-night,
And sing in joyful song thy praise
Entwined with dreams of golden days.

Through yonder arch we marched with pride,
Equipped to take a foremost place,
Resolved whatever chance betide
We still would strive and win the race,—
Hark to the slogan strong and hale,—
For Nineteen Hundred and for Yale.

In anxious hours of doubtful strife,
We kept thy motto full in sight,
Two brilliant stars to guide each life
Through blinding storm and darkling night;
The "Light" and "Truth" upon thy seal
The purpose of thy name reveal.

Dear Mother Yale, to thee we bring Enduring love, undying zeal;
 Thy halls with myriad tributes ring,—
 Yet they express but half we feel;
 Each brick, and stone, and slanting beam
 Is spokesman of some youthful dream.

And so beside the sacred shrine
 We offer up our humble prayer,
 That one, the last of stately line,
 Time's onward march will kindly spare,
 May Old South Middle College stand!
 Preserve her walls from vandal's hand.

A golden sunburst in the east
 Proclaims the forward march of day,
 It ends with beckoning beams the feast,
 It points with shafts the onward way.
 Up all. A song,—a rousing cheer
 For Nineteen Hundred, long and clear.

Dinner was followed by an adjournment to the Campus, with fireworks, fire-water (very mild and phosphorescent), wild charges upon the curious crowd, and a gradual dispersion to Mory's and other stamping-grounds, to early morning trains, and incidentally and occasionally to bed.

Nineteen Hundred did not have particularly choice seats at the Commencement exercises, with the exception of the twenty-four who took some more Yale degrees, but succeeded better at the alumni dinner. Here the exuberance of the fifty or more who still remained was effectually cooled by drinking to the health of the ladies in the gallery, in cold Commons bouillon.

The following list of 179 names is compiled from the registry and the Triennial picture. Many failed to register or to appear for the picture, and it is believed that fully two hundred were present:

J. P. Adams, Adriance, Alexander, Allen, Andrews, Anthony, Arnold, Babcock, Bailey, Baker, R. Baker, Barbour, G. Bartholomew, W. Bartholomew, S. NEWMYER'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

Mr. President, Mr. Chairman of the Cup Committee and Fellow Classmates:

While vainly attempting to dodge the rain drops at the Field this afternoon and incidentally watch Harvard mop up the diamond with our players, I was informed by "Bill" Maloney that it was "up to me" to say something upon receiving, from him as representative of the Class of Nineteen Hundred, the Cup of the Class Boy.

Owing to the strenuous life of the last few days and the shortness of time since this information was conveyed to me, I have been unable to prepare anything. But while listening to "Bill's" presentation speech, it occurred to me that in receiving the Cup for my son I was not receiving it as a gift out and out, but as the representative of a trustee with an implied trust in favor of the members of the Class of Nineteen Hundred. You of Nineteen Hundred are the equitable owners of this Cup; you are the beneficiaries. May each and every one of you quaff long and beneficial drafts from it at our many future gatherings! I shall endeavor as best I may to impress upon my son as the years roll on the necessity of being personally present with this trophy at every meeting of our Class here in New Haven. I shall attend all the meetings of our Class here and see to it that both the Class Boy and the Cup are present. After I have "passed away" or, in the language of the poet, "shuffled off this mortal coil," I direct and empower you as the beneficiaries, should the Class Boy refuse or neglect to attend the meetings of our Class and bring with him this Cup, to bring him here, together with the Cup, by force and arms, and if necessary, to resort to the "Court of Good Fellowship," if you desire, or find the other method ineffectual. I don't think that will be necessary, for I shall make it a point to forcibly impress upon him his duty to you and shall imbue his mind and heart with a feeling of faithful loyalty to Nineteen Hundred and to Yale.

While not strictly in point, yet I want to say this about the Class of Nineteen Hundred (and I consider myself competent to speak, inasmuch as I have sojourned for a time in both the Classes of '98 and '99)—that it is the manliest, the most democratic and the best class that has graduated from Yale during the time I have wandered in and out of our Alma Mater's sacred portals. The few of us who shall be fortunate enough to gather here at our fiftieth anniversary will realize more fully than the greatness of Nineteen Hundred. Our Class will be the shining diadem that crowns St. Elihu's hoary head. May we all strive to make it sparkle even brighter than it would under ordinary care and attention!

Boys of Nineteen Hundred, I propose a toast to the beneficiaries of this Cup—the members of our Class, and one to the trustee—the Class Boy.

SEXENNIAL

Nearly a decade ago Yale opened her gates to welcome what, till then, was her largest Class, and four years later sent it forth at graduation with a number that still holds the Yale record.

THE 1900 SEXENNIAL GROUP

This year, a little weakened in numbers, and beginning to feel the full force of the countless influences which make it hard and often impossible to leave home and business, 1900 still sent back a hundred and forty odd of her men.

From early Monday morning of Commencement week, "A2 Osborn," from one of whose windows floated the banner of the Class, was headquarters for registration and first greetings and for distribution of uniforms and information. The greetings were warm and the uniforms cool. The best of everything was provided, and first and foremost were the uniforms. White jackets with blue trimmings, Turkish trousers of a pleasing and remarkable shade of blue, with deep pockets which could and did receive and hold articles of astonishing number and variety, broad white sash and tassel, white leggings, a Turkish cap and a choice of rifles, made a costume unexcelled for comfort and coolness, and of unrivalled spectacular possibilities, as all New Haven agreed.

On the Campus, Campus baseball is inevitable, and 1900 sent a portion of her military forces into the field against 1903 in prison stripes, but after a few furious innings convict labor showed its usual baleful influence. The Momauguin on the Sound afforded a means for cooling off.

A big crowd centered about Osborn Hall steps in the Campus all day, especially toward late afternoon, and indulged in much talk and in all kinds of music, songs, new and old, led by Bill Coffin, with illustrations by Buck Miller and a semi-occasional solo by Mason Stone. In the evening Savin Rock was "indicated," but the old Savin Rock has given place to the White City, full of all manner of gentle amusements, none of which escaped—roller skates, scenic railways, canes to ring, chutes to shoot, ice cream soda and spun candy. The trained bears and other performers in the ring were quickly dispossessed while 1900 gave a gymnastic and acrobatic performance in keeping with her high reputation.

On Tuesday morning a goodly number attended the general alumni meeting. The first gathering in strength, however, was on Osborn Hall steps for the Class picture. Proud of itself and its uniform and looking pleasant in spite of the hot sun, the Class posed for photographers, official, unofficial and amateur, and next adjourned to the Class meeting at headquarters. George M. Shepherd, Chairman of the Sexennial Committee, presided.

The report of the Class Secretary, George N. Whittlesey, showed that thirty-seven had joined the ranks of the benedicts since Triennial, making eighty in all in the Class. The infant class numbers about forty. Since the Triennial reunion three have died—Hobart Moore, Allan MacLean and Edwin Congdon. During the ten years since the Class entered Yale only eight members have been lost by death. The financial report of the Secretary was also read, showing a balance of $827.17 in the Class Fund. E. B. Fackler and R. B. Miller were appointed to audit the Secretary's report. The Treasurer of the Sexennial Committee, Rev. A. D. Leavitt, gave the report of that Committee, and W. S. Coffin that of the Committee on Resolutions. The following were elected as the Decennial Committee: S. B. Camp, H. P. Wood, T. A. Howell, E. L. Bronson, G. W. Hubbell and W. S. Coffin. The Committee met later and chose H. P. Wood as Chairman. A well-earned and hearty vote of thanks was given to Chairman Shepherd and to Leavitt, F. B. Adams, T. B. Clarke, Carter and Leary, his associates on the Sexennial Committee, and the meeting adjourned.

There was barely time to lay in a store of provisions before the general muster preparatory to the march to the Field for the Yale-Harvard game. The host was led by Shepherd and five other mounted officers, whose dummy steeds curvetted and pranced and all but ran away from their riders, who at all times exhibited rare grace and horsemanship. The band—not Walworth's, but almost as good—also had 1900 uniforms. The main fighting force lined up behind the 1900 banner. To complete the warlike array the heavy artillery was stationed between the band and the rank and file, presumably to protect the one from the other. It consisted of a huge wooden field-piece with appointments complete, drawn by a number of the strongest men in the Class.

But 1900's pride, the endless joy of the multitudes, was "La Fille du Regiment." This winsome little lass, six feet four, with blonde curls, white frock, pink stockings (once known to fame as "Shorty" Taylor), gently led and at times carried in her arms a little woolly lamb. New Jersey's recent and drastic regulations of motor vehicles were broad enough, it was feared, to reach to Yale Field, and accordingly all the horses and the lamb as well wore automobile numbers on their tails. The march to the Field was unmarred save by one accident,—“Ash” Leavitt’s horse became so exhausted, or so dangerously spirited, that it had to be tied to a hitching-post, saving its rider a nasty fall. Operations at the Field were more deadly. The cavalry laid an ambush for an unsuspecting photographer, and when he had them nicely posed, charged upon him and his works furiously. An opportunity soon offered to wreak vengeance on 1903 for the baseball game of Monday morning. The strategy board got to work, the artillery unlimbered, and as the convict gang lock-stepped across the diamond a tremendous and well-aimed discharge laid them one and all on the grass. They were cleared away to give room for the minor Yale-Harvard affair. After getting comfortably settled on the bleachers and the grass, word was sent to the officials that they might proceed, which they did, to Harvard’s confusion as everybody knows.

At 7 o’clock the Class supper was held at Harmonie Hall, the name of which proved to be a happy augury for the evening. Speeches were reserved for the later reunions when physical enthusiasm burns less high. The time that would have been taken up in talk was given to the cultivation of friendship. Wells, the Class mimic, gave some of his famous impersonations before the evening was over. Newmyer and the Class Boy were unfortunately unable to be present. The rules debarring ladies from the supper were suspended in the case of a window figure, which looked on the animated scene from her pedestal with a waxy smile. Later on she was permitted to accompany the Class to the Campus, when the Roman candles began to pop and there suffered martyrdom before the evening ended. The Campus celebration was kept up in considerable numbers until well into the night. A few stayed over for the alumni dinner on Wednesday and for the race on Thursday.

The Sexennial, it was agreed, was all that the best lover of 1900 could wish, and the best reunion the Class had had. The only regret is that a part of the Class can share it only in the reading and telling. What more can be said of any reunion than this: That the entertainment prepared for 1900 by its Committee through long and laborious weeks left nothing to be desired, and that it was fully and joyously met and appreciated from start to finish by every man,—every part of that curious yet very real unit, a Class—and that Class as loyal as ever returned for a family gathering at the home of old Mother Yale.

The following, with several others who failed to register, were present during all or a part of the celebration: F. B. Adams, Alexander, Allen, Andrews, Atterholt, Babcock, A. J. Baker, R. C. Baker, G. H. Bartholomew, Bell, Bentley, Brainard, Brinley, C. W. Bronson, E. S. Bronson, H. L. Bronson, Brooks, J. H. Buck, Butler, S. B. Camp, Carter, Casler, Chappell, Cheney, Chittenden, T. B. Clarke, W. R. Clarke, Coffin, L. A. Cook, Crampton, Crane, F. T. Crawford, Crittenden, Davidson, Draper, E. D. Eaton, Eble, Edwards, Ellsworth, Engelking, Fackler, Farley, Fisher, Fox, Francis, Frank, Fuller, Gillespie, Graves, E. B. Greene, Greenway, Hackett, Hartwell, F. C. Havemeyer, H. O. DECENNIAL

The Class of 1900 enjoyed in its decennial the best of its reunions to date. Perennial or at least decennial youth seemed to mark the Class during the week. Wrexham Hall on York Street furnished sleeping quarters for sixty of the men and a general headquarters for the whole Class, a headquarters supplemented by the grateful shade of Dr. Arnold's hospitable piazza, just across the street. Saturday and Sunday evenings were marked by shore dinners. Early Monday morning, by a swift transformation, identification of the Class as a whole was made easy, and that of individuals difficult, by the Mexican cowboy uniforms handed out by Harry Wood, chairman of the decennial committee, and his associates. It may be stated here, in contradiction of a popular newspaper error, that the suits had been chosen months before and without reference to the return of the notable Rough Rider. In costume the men spent Monday in baseball games, automobile trips, or experiments in the new Carnegie pool. Tuesday the business meeting was presided over by Chairman Wood, the Secretary presented his report, and the following committee was elected for quindecennial: T. B. Clarke, Gillespie, H. O. Havemeyer, Gould, W. R. Maloney, and Arnold. The Class then proceeded to Memorial Hall, where a tablet in memory of Warren Seabury was dedicated and presented to the University. The Class picture was taken on Osborn Hall steps before the march to the Field, which was made behind the Second Regiment Band—a march rewarded by the satisfaction of hearing Umpire Silk O'Loughlin shout his resounding "Ball Tuh"! Calls upon Presidents Dwight and Hadley completed the afternoon. The Class dinner was held at Harmonie Hall without programme and without formality. Hubbard Wells in Faculty imitations and Simmons, the 1900 Caruso, entertained and the band blared between times. Ike Kittle came from the Pacific Coast to the reunion and was awarded the long-distance cup at the dinner. Those present were:

F. B. Adams, Alexander, Allen, Anthony, Arnold, Averell, Babcock, G. M. Baker, Barbour, W. C. Bartholomew, S. R. Bartlett, Bassett, Bentley, Bindley, Boocock, Bradford, Brainard, C. W. Bronson, E. S. GRADUATES

Benjamin Stearns Adams

Residence, 1742 Judson Avenue, Evanston, Ill.

Business address, 613 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

Born December 27, 1877, in Fort Dodge, Iowa, the son of John Quincey Adams and Frances Cornelia Adams. His father was born June 16, 1848, in Troy, Vt., and during his life was president of the Adams & Denmead Company, real estate dealers. His mother was born August 7, 1852, in Mount Vernon, Ohio, and resided in Albion, Iowa, before her marriage. A great grandfather, Walter Smith, graduated from Yale in 1816.

He prepared at Howe Grammar School and at Phillips Andover.

He was married October 30, 1901, in St. Paul, Minn., to Miss Docela W. Clarke, Miss Ely's School '00, daughter of Henry S. Clarke, a banker of Rest Island, Lake City, Minn. They have one son: John Clarke Adams, born August 19, 1910, in Chicago, Ill.

Adams spent the summer of 1901 in Platte, S. D., and that of 1902 in Chamberlain, S. D. Since then he has made his headquarters in Chicago, handling real estate in the West, being now vice-president of the Adams & Denmead Company, real estate dealers of that city. He is a member of the University and Yale clubs of Chicago.

Frederick Baldwin Adams

Residence, Greenwich, Conn.

Business address, 55 Wall Street, New York City.

Born February 5, 1878, in Toledo, Ohio, the son of Charles F. Adams and Anne (Baldwin) Adams. His father, a retired banker, was born in 1846, in Springfield, Mass. His mother was born in 1853, in Cleveland, Ohio, and resided in Toledo, Ohio, before her marriage. A brother, Charles Edward Adams, graduated at Yale in the Class of '04.

He prepared at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and in college was a member of Hé Boulé, Alpha Delta Phi, and Skull and Bones, was chairman of the Yale News, and manager of the University Baseball Association.

He was married September 28, 1907, in Barrytown, N. Y., to Miss Ellen Walters Delano, daughter of Warren Delano of New York. They have one son: Frederick Baldwin Adams, Jr., born March 28, 1910, in Greenwich, Conn.

From 1900 to 1902, Adams was in the employ of the New York Central Railroad Company, in Albany, N. Y. From 1902 until 1905, he was secretary of the Union Trust Company of Albany, and since 1905 he has been a member of the firm of Potter, Choate & Prentice, bankers of New York City.

James Pinckney Henderson Adams

Address, Fair Haven, Vt.

Born April 5, 1879, in Saxe-Weimar, Germany, the son of Col. Edward White Adams and Julia Biddle (Henderson) Adams. His father, born in August, 1844, in Baltimore, Md., a sugar planter in Louisiana and later a stock broker in New York City, was senior partner in the firm of Adams & Hopkins. His mother was born December 16, 1850, in San Augustine, Texas, and was a resident of Paris, France, before her marriage.

He prepared at the Newark Academy, Newark, N. J., and in college specialized in political science and law. He was captain of the Freshman Basket-ball Team and a member of the University Basket-ball Team in his first and second years; was a member of the Varsity Track Team during his first three years; won his "Y" in the one mile walk in Sophomore year, and again in Junior year in the half-mile run, by breaking the Yale-Harvard record of 1:57 $\frac{4}{5}$. His record was unbroken for seven years. He also won Class numerals on the Track Team and was a member of the Cross Country Team during Junior and Senior years, and was captain and president of the Cross Country Association during Senior year.

He was married June 2, 1902, in East Orange, N. J., to Miss Florence Louise Day, daughter of Horace Waldron Day, a fruit importer of New York City. They have had three daughters: Julia Henderson Adams, born May 18, 1903, in New York City, died February 13, 1905, in East Orange, N. J.; Florence Day Adams, born January 20, 1906, in Fair Haven, Vt.; and Elizabeth McCall Adams, born July 31, 1907, in Fair Haven, Vt.

After graduation in 1900 Adams traveled through the United States and Canada until fall when he settled down in New York City and started his law course at Columbia University. While there he won the University Cross Country Championship, became captain of the team but was injured in the Intercollegiate championships.

In March, 1901, he withdrew from the law school to accept the position of clerk with the German American Fire Insurance Company in New York City. In September he was made assistant inspector for the same company and then took a special course in fire insurance law at the New York University Law School, and became an inspector in April, 1902. He spent several months traveling through the South in the winter of 1902-1903. He resigned from the German American Fire Insurance Company in June, 1903, to accept a position of treasurer and member of the board of directors of the Maine Slate Company of Monson with offices in New York City. He attended the New York Law School from 1903 to 1904. In September, 1903, he was elected to the board of directors of the Vermont Unfading Green Slate Company. On March 28, 1904, he accepted the position of general manager of the last mentioned company and moved with his family to Fair Haven, Vt., where he has since resided. Later he became treasurer and president of this company.

In January, 1907, he was elected vice-president and director of the Western Vermont Agricultural Society and in April, was reëlected fire warden. In the same month he was elected president of the Vermont Slate Operators Association and a month later he was given entire charge of handling the strike in the Vermont slate belt. This strike lasted one whole year and only on May 1, 1908, did organized Union Labor acknowledge its defeat in Vermont and permit members of the Slate Worker's Unions to go back to work wherever they could get it. During the strike of 1907-1908, on behalf of the Operators Association he applied for and was granted the most sweeping injunction ever issued in the state of Vermont. This has since become permanent. On several occasions he has represented the slate industry before the Committee on Labor of the House of Representatives in Washington, D. C., and before several state legislatures in opposition to radical bills presented by Organized Labor.

He has been chairman of the executive committee of the National Slate Manufacturers Association, to which position he has been twice reëlected; vice-president of the National Association of Manufacturers; and president of the Vermont Structural Slate Company, recently formed by five of the largest slate companies of Vermont.

He was at one time delegate to the Republican district and state conventions; was elected first alternate delegate-at-large from Vermont to the Republican National Convention in Chicago which nominated Judge Taft for the presidency; and was also elected a delegate to the National Tariff Commission Convention in Indianapolis. He was chosen the regular Republican candidate for representative to the Vermont Legislature but was defeated by the Socialistic Laborites joining forces with the Democrats, because he refused to agree to support the "Weekly Payment Bill."

On June 12, 1911, he, in company with members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, sailed for Europe. The members of this tour met in the principal cities and especially for conferences in Berlin, Paris, and Hempstead Heath. Adams was official representative for the National Association of Manufacturers.

He is a member of the following: Texas Historical Society, Yale Club of New York City (non-resident), National Geographical Society, Knight Templar, American Association for Advancement of Science, Royal Arch Mason, Rutland County Agricultural Society, and Modern Woodman of America. He is also a member of the Country Club, R. B. D. Club, Lake Bomoseen Yacht Club, Calumet Club, all of Fair Haven, Vt. He is a warden of St. Luke's Church and a member of the commerce committee of the Fair Haven Board of Trade.

Earle Alexander

Address, 810 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

Born November 5, 1876, in Oil City, Pa., the son of James Henry Alexander, Knox College (Toronto, Canada) '61, and Elizabeth (Thompson) Alexander. His father, born September 19, 1839, in Toronto, Canada, was vice-president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and vice-president and superintendent of the Bayonne Refinery. His mother was born December 25, 1840, in Pittsburgh, Pa., and graduated from a private school in 1855. A brother, James Leon Alexander, is an ex-member of the Class of '97 S. at Yale.

He prepared at the Pingry High School, Elizabeth, N. J., and in college was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

He is unmarried.

Alexander writes:

"After graduation in 1900, started on a trip 'abroad' which finally resulted in an extended tour around the world, with S. B. Elkins, Jr., of the Class of 1900. Have taken two trips to Europe since the trip around the world, one to the Continent and one to Central Africa after big game. Had the New England agency of the Paul Heating System for a year. Afterward was connected with the West Virginia Coal Company, later the Elkins Coal & Coke Company, office at 1 Broadway, New York City. Later became partner of W. M. Imbrie & Company, brokers, 45 Broadway, New York, which partnership expired by limitation March 1, 1910."

Frederic Winthrop Allen

Address, Care Mechanics & Metals National Bank, 33 Wall Street,
New York City.

Born May 26, 1877, in Walpole, Mass., the son of Melzar Waterman Allen and Martha (Metcalf) Allen. His father, head of the firm of M. W. Allen & Son, builders, was born December 22, 1840, in Walpole, Mass. His mother was born June 10, 1841, in Winthrop, Me., and was a resident of Franklin, Mass., before her marriage. Four cousins have graduated from Yale: George Daniel Pettee, '87; Lemuel Gardner Pettee, '98; William Ernest Everett, '99, and Irving Leonard Fisher, '00. Two brothers, Bernard Melzar Allen, '92, and Philip Ray Allen, '96, are also Yale graduates.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college he was a member of Hé Boulé, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Skull and Bones. He was a member of the Crew for four years, being captain in 1899 and 1900, and was a substitute on the Football Team for four years.

He was married February 4, 1911, in St. Louis, Mo., to Miss Irene Catlin, daughter of Mr. Daniel Catlin of that city.

In November, 1910, Allen was appointed vice-president of the Mechanics & Metals National Bank of New York. In 1910 he wrote:

"Have been with Simmons Hardware Company since graduation—seeing Gil Duncan, Jesse Dana, Dave Francis and Geo. Simmons often enough in Saint Louis and the 1900 'New York exponents of bigotry' three or four times a year. The years have been lacking in 'Romance actual' but I have been a heavy investor in 'Spanish Stock' and still am."

Edwin Carlos Andrews

Residence, University Club, Buffalo, N. Y.
Business address, North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Born June 3, 1877, in Penn Yan, N. Y., the son of John T. Andrews, Union College '64, and Villa (Raplee) Andrews. His father, born March 9, 1842, in North Reading, N. Y., a lawyer, manufacturer, and president of John T. Andrews & Company, later John T. Andrews & Son, is a first lieutenant and brevet captain of Company D, New York 179th

Volunteers. He was postmaster of Penn Yan from 1890 to 1893, and a member of the Assembly in 1882. His mother was born January 29, 1843, in Dundee, N. Y., and died in that place August 5, 1902. A brother, Charles Tubbs Andrews, graduated from Yale in the Class of '03.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

He is unmarried.

Andrews is now occupied in the manufacture of steam boilers and radiators. He writes:

"Graduated from the New York Law School in 1902, admitted June of that year. Lived in New York from 1900 to 1902. Then returned to Penn Yan in law firm of John T. Andrews & Son. Bought into flour mill of Andrews Son & Company in 1901 and now own one-half of same. Was in firm of Andrews & Gristock, coal, wood and grapes. Sold out in 1905. Was managing partner of John T. Andrews & Company (paper mills) for several years (1902), till recently. Bought real estate, etc., in Brooklyn and New York, while at law school and later, and was very lucky in building operations there. Didn't have enough to do and bought the bankrupt Niagara Radiator Company here from the receiver on September 18, 1907, and have more than doubled the business. Now have about 400 men working, melting from 50 to 60 tons of pig iron daily, branches in several cities and doing finely. (Selling some preferred stock just now, so if this reads like an ad please don't blame the musician but cut it out.)

"Member Yale Club of New York, University Club, Buffalo, Kenka Yacht Club, Penn Yan Club, etc. My travels have been mostly on business and short pleasure trips in Canada, fishing and very little fussing. See the New York and Buffalo Yale boys most often."

Permanent address, Box 1334, Providence, R. I.

Born April 3, 1878, in Providence, R. I., the son of Noel L. Anthony and Hattie A. (Knox) Anthony. His father, a furniture merchant and senior member of Anthony & Cowell Company, although not now active in the business, was born January 4, 1849, in Newport, R. I. His mother was born November 22, 1848, in Warwick, R. I., and was a resident of Providence before her marriage.

He prepared at the Providence (R. I.) High School and in college received honors in geological biology.

He was married October 14, 1903, in Fall River, Mass., to Miss Eliza Swan Stevens, daughter of the late William F. Stevens, an accountant. They have had three children: Esther Stevens Anthony, born April 26, 1905, died April 15, 1906; Elizabeth Stevens Anthony, born November 3, 1907; and Robert Lawrence Anthony, Jr., born July 2, 1909.

Anthony is at present engaged in business as a merchant, in executive department, with the Anthony & Cowell Company. He writes:

"Have lived since marriage in Providence and have been associated since October, 1900, with the Anthony & Cowell Company. The farthest north has been Boston and travels have not been numerous. Have been too busy raising a family. Used up most of the grey matter trying to get a college degree and have made no other attempts since."

Harold Sears Arnold

Residence, 122 College Street, New Haven, Conn.

Permanent address, Care H. S. Arnold, 36 Dwight Street,
New Haven, Conn.

Born July 29, 1877, in New Haven, Conn., the son of Capt. George S. Arnold and Evelyn G. (Thompson) Arnold. His father, a merchant and proprietor of the E. Arnold Company, was born April 16, 1847, in New Haven. His mother was born April 5, 1865, in Hartford, Conn., and was a resident of that place up to the time of her marriage. A brother, George Stanleigh Arnold, graduated from Yale in 1903.

He prepared at the Hillhouse (now New Haven) High School, and at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college was a member of the College Choir, Apollo and University Glee clubs, University Mandolin Club, New Haven Symphony Orchestra, Oratorio Society, and Zeta Psi.

He is unmarried.

Arnold is at present assistant in bacteriology and pathology and instructor in pathology at the Yale Medical School; assistant pathologist and assistant attending physician at the New Haven Hospital; and an examiner for the Ætna Life Insurance Company. Concerning his life since graduation, he writes:

"After leaving college with my erudition skin in a blue can with Yale printed on it, I became filled with a desire to have a mate for it. Consequently the next three years saw me in the musty halls of the Yale Medical School. When the second parchment was obtained my attention was turned toward the study of practical medicine together with observation of training schools for nurses at the Hartford Hospital and the Presbyterian Hospital in New York. These activities consumed three more years. The next year was spent in clinics and cafés in Vienna and Berlin, where beside the contemplation of medicine, there was an opportunity for a little study along the lines of music and beer. Since then, aside from a few more months in Europe on a second trip spent in an automobile trip through France, the time has been spent in either sitting idly in my office waiting for an unwary patient or in dashing through the streets in an automobile in the hope of keeping up an appearance of being busy and prosperous. A few hours each day are spent in the New Haven Hospital and in teaching at the Yale Medical School. Thus far I have eluded 'Cupid' and am not likely to buzz in the 'Tanglefoot' of life, so far as I can see, for some time to come."

He is a member of the City, County and State Medical societies, American Medical Society, Country, Lawn, Yacht and Graduates clubs of New Haven, and the Yale Association of Class Secretaries. He is Secretary of the Class of '03 M.

Stephen Russell Bartlett

Residence, 20 Union Park, Boston, Mass.

Business address, 93 Federal Street, Boston, Mass.

Born in Waterbury, Conn., January 15, 1877, the son of the late Stephen Chalker Bartlett, M.D. Yale '66, and Julia Belden (Pickett) Bartlett, Hartford Female Seminary ex-'60. His father, born April 19, 1839, in North Guilford, Conn., died February 3, 1879, was acting assistant surgeon in the United States Navy on Admiral Porter's flagship Lenapee in the Civil War, was in action at Fort Fisher, and established a hospital after the fight. After the war he practiced medicine in Naugatuck and Waterbury, Conn. During his career as a physician Dr. Bartlett had a notable case of skin-grafting by which the entire scalp of a woman was restored. (This case was reported at length in the American Journal of Medical Science of October, 1872.) His mother was born April 7, 1838, in South Farms, now Morris, Conn., a parish of Litchfield. Besides his father he was preceded at Yale by two uncles: Walter Russell Bartlett, '71 M., and George Henry Bartlett, '77 S. He prepared at the Hartford (Conn.) Public High School, and during his Senior year in college specialized in mathematics and engineering in Sheff.

He was married September 22, 1908, in Richmond Hill, Long Island, N. Y., to Miss Alice Julia Farnham, Vassar ex-'03, daughter of Edwin Pickett Farnham, D.D., superintendent of the Baptist Missions of Long Island and a resident of Richmond Hill.

Bartlett is a civil and mechanical engineer, and is assistant to one of the members of the firm of Lockwood, Greene & Company, mill engineers of Boston, Mass. Concerning his career since graduation he writes:

"Summer of 1900 I worked in a machine shop in New Britain, Conn., in the fall entering Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, with second and third year work. Roomed with Elisha Walker and with him spent summer of 1901 at Fore River Ship & Engine Company, Quincy, Mass., working on cruiser Des Moines and destroyer Lawrence. Batty Hill was in the office. Next vacation spent in Southern office of Lockwood, Greene & Company, Greenville, S. C., in surveying and general mill engineering work. Returned to Tech and graduated in 1903, taking B.S. degree in mechanical engineering. With P. K. Kearney tested New Bedford pumping station for thesis, which was selected to be read at Commencement as representative of mechanical course. During Tech course saw Walworth and Lippincott frequently, other Boston boys occasionally, and was charter member of Boston Yale Club. On July 1, 1903, I went South for Lockwood, Greene & Company again and was connected with the Greenville office until July, 1905. During this time made several water power surveys and power tests on cotton mills, traveling all over the Carolinas, Virginia, and Georgia. In April, 1904, I visited Charleston to welcome President Hadley with the Carolina Yale Alumni Association, of which I became a member. In July, 1905, I was transferred to the Boston office of Lockwood, Greene & Company, as special assistant. After my marriage in September I settled in Auburndale for about three years. In November, 1906, I went South again on a series of water power surveys and in January, 1907, Mrs. Bartlett joined me in the wilds of North Carolina. April found us camping out in Georgia, sixteen miles from town, with a party of twenty men. Returned to Boston in September, and the next winter moved to Newton Centre. Next summer was the first of three glorious seasons at Marblehead, where our canoeing in the surf astonished the natives.

"The last two winters have been spent in Boston. This will be our second year as residents of the South End House, one of Boston's fifteen social settlements. Our interest is principally in the young people of this lodging house district. Improvement associations are studying the civic needs of Boston and I am especially interested in the transportation problems. After a winter's work in the city there is nothing I enjoy so much as a canoe trip, such as we took last spring, on the Charles, or a good long stay by the sea."

Frederick Pomeroy Bassett

Residence, 5202 Kenmore Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Business address, 711 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Permanent address, Care M. Schulz Company, Chicago, Ill.

Born August 13, 1876, in Cincinnati, Ohio, the son of George Pomeroy Bassett, University of Stuttgart ex-'70, and Eliza Frazier (Andrews) Bassett. His father, a retired capitalist, founder of the Cincinnati Clearing House, and general agent of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was born in Louisville, Ky., January 18, 1844. His mother was born in Steubenville, Ohio, March 25, 1842, and was a graduate of a private school in New Haven, Conn. He was preceded at Yale by a cousin, Martin Andrews, Jr., ex-'84.

He prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, and in college specialized in chemistry, civil engineering, and the languages. He held a First Dispute appointment and was a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

He was married June 6, 1906, in Chicago, Ill., to Miss Marie Josephine Schulz, Academy of Our Lady (Chicago, Ill.) '00, daughter of Matthias

Schulz, a piano and organ manufacturer of Chicago. Two sons have been born to them: Frederick Pomeroy Bassett, Jr., born January 11, 1908; and John Andrews Bassett, born December 23, 1909.

Bassett is now vice-president of the M. Schulz Company and the Werner Piano Company. Concerning his career since graduation, he writes:

"Began work October 21, 1900, in Chicago as order-clerk for J. B. Clow & Sons. Worked for that company for two years, reaching position of branch manager. Then resigned and became manager for McCrum-Howell Company of New York in the states of Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia. Stayed with this company for two years and then came to Chicago to go into the piano and organ manufacturing business. Am still in that line of work, was made vice-president of our companies August 21, 1909, and am doing a great deal of traveling."

Ernest Turrell Bauer

Residence, 58 West 128th Street, New York City.

Business address, 137 West 125th Street, New York City.

In 1908 he became medical chief of St. Vincent's Clinic, and assistant physician and pathologist at the Fordham Hospital. He was also instructor in pathology at the Fordham Medical School, resigning his position at the St. Lawrence Hospital. In 1909 he resigned from St. Vincent's Hospital and was made professor of histology at the Fordham Medical School. He was given leave of absence from the Fordham Hospital and Medical School for the year 1910, and for this year became assistant resident physician at the Stony Wold Sanatorium, Lake Kushaqua, N. Y.

Cogswell Bentley

Residence, 319 Berkeley Street, Rochester, N. Y.

Business address, German Insurance Building, Rochester, N. Y.

Born May 25, 1879, in Rochester, N. Y., the son of Sardius D. Bentley, University of Rochester '71, and Martha Burr (Cogswell) Bentley. His father, born November 9, 1843, in Busti, Chautauqua County, N. Y., has been, since graduation from Rochester, a member of the firm of Cogswell, Bentley & Cogswell, lawyers, the other two members of the firm being his father-in-law and brother-in-law. His mother was born August 1, 1852, in Rochester, N. Y.

He prepared at the Bradstreet Preparatory School, Rochester, N. Y., and in college received a High Oration appointment and won prizes in chess and whist.

He was married August 7, 1909, in New Bedford, Mass., to Miss Harriet Jackson Benton, Vassar '07, daughter of Charles E. Benton of New Bedford. They have two daughters: Harriet Jackson Bentley, born June 12, 1910; and Barbara Bentley, born December 20, 1911, in Rochester, N. Y.

Bentley is a lawyer practicing in Rochester, N. Y., and concerning his life since leaving college he writes:

"After graduation I was tutoring for two years, preparing some boys for Yale. My travels with them took me first to Spuyten Duyvil on the Hudson, then to the foothills of the Adirondacks, and in the winter of 1901, to Cuba, where I spent about five months, going down by boat and returning by way of Havana, Florida, and the railroad along the coast. In the fall of 1902 I entered the Yale Law School, from which I received an LL.B. in June, 1904. On returning to Rochester I passed my bar examinations and became associated with the firm of Satterlee, Bissell, Taylor & French, with which I remained until October, 1907. Since that time I have been practicing law alone. The organizations of which I am a member are few in number. I belong to the Rochester Bar Association, Rochester Tennis Club, Rochester Chamber of Commerce and the Rochester Yale Alumni Association. I am interested in them all but not trying to run any of them. My favorite recreations are tennis, canoeing, and cross country tramping, and in the summer I try to devote myself impartially to all three and to my law practice. 'Happy is the country which,' etc., is a proverb which has its application in my case."

Blount is first assistant to Horace Pettit, lawyer, specializing in patent, trade-mark, and copyright law. Concerning his life since graduation he writes:

"In October, 1900, I became an instructor in preparatory school studies at Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pa., where I taught for one year. In the spring of 1901, I secured a position as tutor and took up my duties in New York City in September, 1901; my address was 50 Willow Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. While tutoring I also attended the New York Law School and began an office clerkship with Messrs. Luce, Yale '89, and Davis, Yale '91, attorneys-at-law, at 7 Wall Street. Was interrupted by a visit to Florida for the winter of 1901-1902 in connection with my tutoring duties. In the fall of 1902, I became managing clerk in the offices of Luce & Davis and remained so until June, 1906, when I determined to make a specialty of patent, trade-mark, and copyright law and resigned from the office of Luce & Davis, to enter the office of George H. Benjamin, 45 Broadway, New York City, solicitor of patents and a patent expert. Prior to this change, I had continued my attendance at the New York Law School and had been admitted to the New York Bar. I remained in the office of George H. Benjamin until the latter part of October, 1907, when I came to Philadelphia to enter the office of Horace Pettit, 705 Witherspoon Building, one of the leading lawyers in this country, specializing in patent, trade-mark, and copyright law.

"My favorite recreations are theatre, bridge, tennis, and golf. The classmates seen most frequently are George N. Whittlesey, George H. Whipple, Bascom Johnson, and others residing in New York City."

*Sidney Gray Bristol

Died 1901

Born August 14, 1876, in Mt. Pleasant, Racine County, Wis., the son of William Franklin Bristol and Annie L. Bristol.

He prepared at Racine Academy and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. In 1896 he entered Williams College and remained until May, 1898, when he enlisted in the Second New York Volunteers, and was in camp for several months at Chickamauga, Tampa, and elsewhere. He was mustered out of service October 26, and then joined the Class of 1900.

He was unmarried.

The year after graduation Bristol studied at the Harvard Law School, and was devoting the summer vacation to business. While thus engaged in southern Vermont he stopped in Brattleboro, and was passing the night with a classmate. He had risen from bed in his sleep, as is supposed, and in returning accidentally aroused his friend, who mistook him for a burglar and shot him with a revolver which he was accustomed to keep within reach, the charge entering the abdomen and severing the iliac artery. He died in about half an hour, July 19, 1901, in his twenty-fifth year.

He was married October 12, 1907, in Cleveland, Ohio, to Miss Minerva C. Kline, Vassar '03, daughter of Virgil P. Kline, a lawyer of Cleveland.

Brooks is connected with the Brooks Company. Concerning his life since graduation, he writes:

"Worked with the Brooks Company, living meantime in Cleveland. Have spent two vacations in Europe, one in Bermuda and the others in the United States. I see few Yale men except those of Cleveland. At long intervals I have seen, in Cleveland, Jim Niedecken, Bill Coffin, Norman Bardeen, Ned Park, and Patterson—few and far between."

Kenneth Bruce

Address, De Funiak Springs, Fla.

Born December 28, 1876, in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., the son of Wallace Bruce, Yale '67, and Annie (Becker) Bruce. His father, an author and lecturer, at one time United States consul in Edinburgh, Scotland, was born November 10, 1844, in Hillsdale, N. Y. His mother was born in Mellenville, N. Y., and before her marriage was a resident of Brookview, N. Y. Among relatives who have graduated from Yale are the following: an uncle, Wayland Irving Bruce, '82; and three cousins, Alfred Bruce Chace, '92, William Wallace Chace, '96, and Donald Bruce, '06.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college made literature his chief study. He was the recipient of a first prize in elocution in Sophomore year, president of the Freshman Union, vice-president of the Yale Union, Class Poet, and a member of the Senior Literary Society Chi Delta Theta.

He was married April 5, 1905, in Atmore, Ala., to Miss Laura Carney, daughter of William Marshall Carney, a mill owner of Atmore.

Bruce is now a lecturer on popular, historical, and literary subjects, and is also superintendent of the Florida Chautauqua Association. He writes:

"Upon graduation I entered the publishing business, and up to 1905 was manager of the Bryant Union Publishing Company, New York City. Since then have been identified with Chautauqua work, having lectured on many Chautauqua platforms in many states, from Canada to Florida, from New York to Iowa. Have been for past six years superintendent of the Florida Chautauqua at DeFuniak Springs, Fla. Have devoted much time to the lecture platform, appearing on many school, college, and institute courses, such as University Extension Course in New Haven, Conn.; Institute of Arts and Science, Brooklyn, N. Y.; J. B. Stetson University, Florida; Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Franklin and Marshall, Lancaster, Pa.

"Have contributed steadily to current magazines, especially verse, and published a book in a lighter vein, entitled 'The Return of the Half Moon,' Broadway Publishing Company, 1909, which came before the public at the time of the 'Ter-Centennial Celebration of the Discovery of the Hudson River.'"

Jerome Herman Buck

Residence, 342 West Fifty-sixth Street, New York City.

Business address, 2 Rector Street, New York City.

Born in Albany, N. Y., November 29, 1877, the son of Herman Bochowitz Buck and Harriet (Ehrich) Buck. His father, a manufacturer, and president of the Riverside Knitting Mills, was born in Germany, about October 29, 1833. His mother was born in Albany, N. Y., in December, 1844, and was a resident of New York City before her marriage. Relatives who have graduated from Yale include: an uncle, Louis Rinaldo Ehrich, '69; and three cousins, Manfred William Ehrich, '98, Walter Ehrich, '99 S., and William Joseph Ehrich, '00 S.

He prepared at the Albany (N. Y.) High School, and in college specialized in history and economics, receiving special honors in the former study.

He is unmarried.

Buck is at present engaged in the practice of law, and writes:

"Autobiographies were never in my line, but here goes. After I was ushered out of New Haven, I took an express train for New York and have been there ever since. I desired to learn something of the guesses of the courts so I attended the New York Law School, where they gave me a diploma conferring the degree of LL.B. in 1902, sugar coated with a cum laude afterwards. I succeeded in proving to the state board of examiners that I knew a few legal precedents so they admitted me to the legal fraternity. While at law school, I also engaged in newspaper work, but when I was entitled to designate myself 'attorney at law' I laid down the quill. I was connected with James, Schell & Elkus, attorneys at law, for about a year getting experience and later was associated in the practice of the law with Edward A. Alexander. I am a member of the Yale Club, where occasionally I see one of the unmarried members of the Class. My favorite game, I suppose, is chasing the ever elusive client, but, excluding the lawyers thus far, I have only helped one trouble laden 1900 man out of the meshes of the law. So you can see what law abiding citizens we are. Amen."

Winthrop Buck

Residence, 82 Hartford Avenue, Wethersfield, Conn.
Business address, Wadsworth Street School, Hartford, Conn.

Born September 2, 1878, in Hartford, Conn., the son of Edward Winthrop Buck and Abbie Barber (Osborn) Buck. His father, a clerk in the Travelers Insurance Company, was born in Wethersfield, Conn., February 28, 1848. His mother was born in Newington, Conn., April 16, 1854. Certain Colonial governors, relatives of Buck, graduated from Yale, besides two second cousins: Henry Robinson Buck, '96 S., and Charles Howe Buck, '04.

He prepared at the Hartford (Conn.) Public High School, and in college specialized in history, in which study he won honors. He held several offices in the Young Men's Christian Association.

He was married July 17, 1907, in Saybrook, Conn., to Miss Cora Simpson Denison, daughter of George W. Denison, a farmer of that place. They have one daughter: Katherine Denison Buck, born in Wethersfield, Conn., July 25, 1908.

Buck is vice-principal of the Wadsworth Street School, south school district, Hartford, Conn. He writes:

"Began teaching in Nazareth Hall Military Academy, Nazareth, Pa. While there played on school football team and joined the Royal Arcanum. The next year became principal of the Old Lyme Graded School and remained two years. Sang in village choir and joined A. F. and A. M. in Pythagoras Lodge No. 45. Took degree of M.A. from Yale for absent work in history in 1903. Became principal of Old Saybrook Graded School, where I stayed two years. Changed to Siloam Lodge No. 32 and joined Burning Bush Chapter of Royal Arch Masons. During summer 1904 took a European trip.

"Came to Hartford and taught in Wadsworth Street School, from which I had graduated in 1892. After teaching two years I became vice-principal, which position I have held three years. Changed lodge membership to Hartford Lodge No. 88 and am now an officer. Was married in the summer of 1907.

"I am auditor and member school board town of Wethersfield and superintendent of the Sunday school. Pendleton, Merrills, Brainard, Barbour, are among those I see most frequently. Have no hobby or outdoor favorite recreation."

Kenneth Lovejoy Burns

Residence, 3308 Stevens Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

Business address, Flour Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.

Born May 1, 1877, in Le Mars, Iowa, the son of Frank W. Burns and Anna Louise (Houghton) Burns. His father, born in Milford, N. H., May 28, 1842, was in the flour milling business and was president and manager of the Plymouth Roller Mills. His mother was born in Milton, Mass., May 2, 1848, and resided in that place and Springfield, Ill., before her marriage. Two brothers graduated from Yale: Ralph Houghton Burns, '95, and Benjamin Foster Burns, '04.

He prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

He was married December 15, 1905, in Albert Lea, Minn., to Miss Ada Louise Blair, daughter of Edwin D. Blair, a real estate and lumber dealer of Grand Haven, Mich. They have two children: Blair Houghton Burns, born April 4, 1909; and Anna Louise Burns, born September 11, 1910.

Burns is at present connected with the Washburn Crosby Company. He writes:

"I came to Minneapolis soon after graduation and entered the employ of the Peavey Elevator Company. The same fall I went through a serious siege of typhoid pneumonia and upon my recovery found it necessary to give up my too confining position. The following summer saw me enlisted as a 'student assistant' in forestry work and the next two years my time was spent between Minnesota and the National Reserves in the Black Hills, Wyoming, and Montana.

"It was in the summer of 1902 that I happily ran across George Green in Deadwood, S. D. He was the first classmate I had seen since leaving New Haven and he looked good to me. We went up to Moody's law office in Deadwood but found he was out punching cows. I also met Tom Watson and Hedge in Sheridan, Wyo., the same summer. In 1903, having fully recovered my health, I returned to Minneapolis and became identified with the Anchor Grain Company, operating a line of houses in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, and North and South Dakota—this soon after my return from Triennial. My marriage to Miss Ada Blair of Grand Haven, Mich., took place in 1905 as noted above. In the spring of 1908 I came over to Washburn Crosby Company, with whom I now am."

John Roberts Bushong

His mother was born in Lancaster, Pa., October 14, 1849, and was a resident of Lancaster County at the time of her marriage. A brother, Robert Grey Bushong, graduated from Yale in the Class of '03.

He prepared at Carroll Institute, Reading, Pa., and at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa. He entered the Class after Christmas in Freshman year.

He is unmarried.

Bushong is senior partner of the firm of Bushong & Moore, attorneys. His partner is Charles Everett Moore, Yale '04. He writes:

"I attended New York Law School in the fall of 1900, after spending the summer traveling in Europe and graduated with the degree of LL.B. from there in 1902, and was admitted to the bar in New York County, July 8, 1902. I have practiced law since then in New York County five years and since that time in White Plains, Westchester County, N. Y. I have been candidate for assembly from the fourth assembly district in Westchester County in 1908 and 1909, but was defeated, owing to the fact that the district is overwhelmingly Republican and I am a Democrat.

"I have been—not now—a director, secretary, and treasurer of the White Plains Club, am a member of the Yale Club, New York City, an Elk, and a Mason. Took part in the army maneuvers in Manassas, Va., in September, 1904.

"I am now a fighting Democrat inspired by our dear old professor, William G. Sumner, whom I am sure we all love and respect for what he was as a man and what he tried to make us."

Campbell is assistant superintendent of H. C. Rowe & Company of New Haven. Concerning his career since graduation, he writes:

"With Winchester Repeating Arms Company, New Haven, as assistant stock keeper from 1900 to 1907. Since then have occupied present position as noted above. I am one of the obscure members of the Class and can boast of no startling achievements. My only position of trust outside of business is as a member of the official board of the Westville Methodist Church. My military career ended with the close of the Spanish War. I was one of those members of the Class who so nobly guarded the coast at that time, first in Niantic, later in Portland, and last at Camp Alger."

Shiras Campbell

Residence, 333 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

Business address, 101 Park Avenue, New York City.

Born October 5, 1878, in Elizabeth, N. J., the son of Benjamin Howell Campbell, Columbia '68 and M.A., and Mary Purviance (Shiras) Campbell. Capen is at present a manufacturer and merchant, and is president of the Capen Belting & Rubber Company of St. Louis. He writes:

"Immediately after graduating from college I came home to St. Louis and have made my residence here ever since. My first start in business life was made in the shipping department of the Capen Belting & Rubber Company of which I am now president, and I have filled numerous other positions while in this company's employ, such as city salesman, traveling salesman in the Southwest, and as secretary. I have never been connected with any other firm or any other line of business; neither have I had the time or inclination to join any clubs or organizations excepting business ones.

"My religious views are somewhat broad but I have always attended the Protestant Church. I am a member of the Masonic Fraternity, having taken all the York Rite degrees, also the Shrine. Politically I have always been a Republican and accordingly voted for our good friends Teddy Roosevelt and Bill Taft. My political views, unlike the tariff, are subject to change without notice. My favorite pastime at present is hunting. My travels, excepting for business purposes, have been somewhat limited, but I see quite often many of our old classmates who live in or pass through St. Louis."

He is unmarried.

Casler is attending surgeon and gynecologist in the Hospital for Women of Maryland, in Baltimore, Md. He writes:

"After leaving New Haven in 1900 I determined to study medicine if possible. I entered the first year Class at Johns Hopkins in 1901 and at once met some old familiar faces, Ricker, Vogeler, McGouldrick, Weaver, and Schell, Sheff '00, all being in the same Class. Ricker and I roomed together our first year. Two of the men were at once made instructors in chemistry due to the fact that they had had Prof. Chittenden's course at Yale. In my second year I was made a demonstrator in anatomy and it was a peculiar joy to all of our 1900 men that in the Class below us in Medical School were four members of our rivals, Yale '99. In my second year I became a member of the firm of Casler & Cutter, and for the remaining three years in Hopkins carried on a large business for the sale of medical books and supplies. I was made a member of the fourth year medical society, the Society of Pithotomists. After graduation in 1904 I became an interne for one year at the Johns Hopkins Hospital. The following year, 1905, I was made second assistant gynecologist to the hospital. In 1906 I was appointed first assistant and from 1907 until 1909 was resident gynecologist to the hospital and instructor in the medical school. In July, 1909, I started in practice at 19 West Chase Street, Baltimore. The same month, I became a member of the visiting staff of the Union Protestant Infirmary, of the Church Home and Infirmary, and of the Hospital for the Women of Maryland, and am an instructor at the Johns Hopkins Medical School. My work almost entirely since graduation in 1904 has been taken up in surgical research work, surgery, and gynecology."

Born January 31, 1879, in South Orange, N. J., the son of Retired Rear Admiral George P. Colvocoresses, U. S. N., United States Naval Academy '69, and Mary Dwight (Baldwin) Colvocoresses. His father, born April 4, 1847, in Norwich, Vt., was an ex-member of Norwich University and received the degree of M.A. Honorary from that university. His mother was born April 5, 1852, in New York City, and was a resident of that place before her marriage.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college specialized in historical, legal, and scientific subjects. He was a member of Zeta Psi and received honors in history.

He was married December 31, 1906, in Noumea, New Caledonia, to Miss Alice M. Hagen, daughter of the late Nicholas Hagen, formerly a merchant of Sydney, Australia, and of Noumea, New Caledonia. They have had one son: George Hagen Colvocoresses, born September 27, 1907, in Litchfield, Conn., and died February 19, 1909, in New York City.

At present Colvocoresses is a mining engineer, connected with the International Nickel Company and is superintendent of the Millerett Silver Mining Company, Ltd., of Gowganda, Ontario. He writes:

"In August, 1900, I went to work for the Orford Copper Company at their smelting plant in Bayonne, N. J. In March, 1901, I was transferred to their branch works in Copper Cliff, Ontario, and took up mining and metallurgical work and studies. In January, 1902, was sent to New Caledonia as assistant superintendent for the Nickel Corporation, Ltd., a subsidiary company of the International Nickel Company. Was afterwards made superintendent of mines for this company in New Caledonia and did some mining examination work in Australia and the New Hebrides as well. Returned to United States in June, 1905, and became one of the staff of engineers of the International Nickel Company, being connected also with the Massey Copper Mine, in Ontario, and the Anglo-American Iron Company of Ontario. In December, 1906, I made a second trip to Australia and New Caledonia for the International Nickel Company and returned to United States in June, 1907, and for them took charge of exploration and development work of Anglo-American Iron Company, also made various examinations of mines in the United States, Canada, Porto Rico and Cuba. In January, 1909, took charge of the Millerett Silver Mine in Gowganda, Ontario, with which property I am at present connected as superintendent.

"Was United States commercial agent in New Caledonia from 1902 to 1905. Served in Spanish War, in 1898, with First Connecticut Volunteer Infantry. Am member of the New York Yale Club, Machinery Club of New York, American Institute of Mining Engineers, Electro-Chemical Society, and the Canadian Mining Institute. Favorite recreation is hunting, fishing, and sailing (when I get a chance). I haven't seen as much of any of my classmates as I would like to."

Died 1906

Born April 7, 1874, in Clarendon, Vt., the son of Edwin Congdon and Emma (Smith) Congdon.

He was unmarried.

After graduation Congdon was engaged in hotel work, but from 1902 he suffered from tuberculosis. He spent a year at Saranac Lake, N. Y., and lived in a tent at home for three years. For a year and a half he was employed as a mail carrier, and in this outdoor occupation seemed to grow stronger. There was some hope of ultimate recovery from the disease, but about a week before his death he was taken with tubercular meningitis, of which he died without recovering consciousness, May 16, 1906, in his thirty-third year. He was a member of the Congregational Church.

Norman George Conner

Residence, Bayombong, Nueva Vizcaya, P. I.

Permanent mail address, Care Bureau of Education, Manila, P. I.

Born December 18, 1879, in Marshallton, Pa., the son of Hayes Conner and Elizabeth Benner (Thomas) Conner. His father was a farmer and was born January 16, 1840, in Embreeville, Pa. His mother was born August 19, 1842, in Lawrel, Pa., and resided in Pottstown, Pa., before her marriage. The following relatives have graduated from Yale: an uncle, Isaac Thomas, '81; and a cousin Walter Scott Thomas, '99 S.

He prepared at Hillhouse High School, New Haven, Conn., and in college specialized in preparatory work for medicine.

He is unmarried.

At present Conner is superintendent of schools for the Bureau of Education, in connection with the Philippine Government at Province of Nueva Vizcaya, Luzon. He writes:

"Since graduation, I have lived in Marshallton, Pa., and in the Philippines at the following places: Talavera, Nueva Ecija Province; Dupax, Nueva Vizcaya Province; and at Bayombong, Nueva Vizcaya Province, since July, 1904. I entered the service of the Philippine Government on September 7, 1901, as a teacher in the Bureau of Education, and in June, 1904, was promoted to a division superintendency and assigned to the province of Nueva Vizcaya. I have studied no further in any school since graduation.

"My only military service was rendered in 1898, when I was a private in Company E, First Connecticut Volunteers, from the time of the organization of that regiment on May 17, 1898, until its muster-out in November of that year.

"My only travels have been those done in coming to the Philippines and in returning home once and back here again. Came over here in 1901 on an army transport, from Frisco via Honolulu and Guam, which places I saw well. In 1909, I returned home traveling from Hong Kong to New York, via the Suez. The only long stops I made were in Italy and in Spain. Later in the same year I returned to Manila, sailing from Seattle. This gave me about two weeks on land in Japan, and a few days in Shanghai.

"This province is very much out of the way, even for the Philippines. It has, however, an excellent climate and fine hunting and very interesting people. The only real savages in Luzon are found here. The hunting for duck, deer, wild boar, and wild caribou (buffalo) is fine, and I frequently go out on such trips. This, and trips to China by way of vacation, are my principal recreations.

"I never set eye on a classmate from 1901, when I arrived in the Islands, until I landed in New York in April, 1909. There are few Yale men over here, and there has been but one 1900 man (Miller) but myself, and he returned long ago."

Louis Aldrich Cook

Residence, Beechcroft, South Weymouth, Mass.

Business address, Court House, Dedham, Mass.

Permanent address, 46 Union Street, South Weymouth, Mass.

Born May 24, 1877, in South Weymouth, Mass., the son of Judge Louis Atwood Cook, Phillips Exeter ex-'69, and Lucinda Aldrich (Clark) Cook. His father, born May 4, 1847, in Blackstone, Mass., is a lawyer, holding public office as clerk of courts for Norfolk County, Mass.; has represented Weymouth, Mass., in the legislature and has held many town offices, and is also associate justice of the East Norfolk District Court. His mother was born November 29, 1858, in Smithfield, R. I., and was a resident of Blackstone, Mass., before her marriage. Among the relatives who have attended Yale are the following: a second cousin, Earl Hopkins, ex-'93 S.; and a brother, Sidney Rogers Cook, '05.

He prepared at the South Weymouth (Mass.) High School and at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college specialized in psychology and economics. He was president of the Chess Club and was chess champion of Yale for three years, playing during that time in the intercollegiate tournament and twice by cable against Oxford and Cambridge.

He was married March 19, 1902, in Portsmouth, R. I., to Miss Mabel Irving Gilbert, daughter of George A. Gilbert of Providence, R. I. They have one son: Louis Aldrich Cook, 3d, born July 29, 1907, at Beechcroft, South Weymouth, Mass.

Cook is a lawyer and is assistant clerk of courts for Norfolk County, Mass. He also ran as clerk for a session of the superior court. He writes:

"I attended Harvard Law School for one year, 1900 to 1901. In 1902 was appointed assistant clerk of courts for Norfolk County, which position I still hold. In 1905, I was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar and have since practised law successfully at South Weymouth, Mass., where I have always lived.

"My military record is as follows: Marched in the Bicentennial parade and at Triennial and Sexennial also. Went to the World's Fair in St. Louis, with the Yale Military Company and acted as aide-de-camp to Jim Donnelly; on the Pike, I met Hunt and McCartin very late at night. They said they were attending the Democratic Convention. Got shot at Jake's after Triennial Dinner and was carried to 86 South Middle in considerable distress.

"In my professional position, I have acted as administrator of one or two estates, but my specialty is guardian of spendthrift drunks. My best ward has been arrested and confined twenty-nine times and only once for burglary. Under my guidance he stayed out of jail once for four months, which is his record.

"I belong to various social and political clubs but none of them are as well known as I am.

"As to my travels, in 1909 went to Gloversville, N. Y., and acted as usher at George Green's wedding with Ned Park and Len Peck. A great concourse of people almost prevented the bride and wedding party from entering the church. So far as I could see the ceremony was entirely legal, but I am not an expert on matrimony. Divorce is my specialty. My favorite recreations have been, first commuting, second signing checks, third working overtime. Taylor and I have a camp to which you are all invited. I have frequently seen Irving Fisher, Warner Taylor, and George Green.

Foster Crampton

Zenas Marshall Crane

Address, Dalton, Mass.

Born March 5, 1878, in Dalton, Mass., the son of Zenas Crane, Esq., and Ellen J. (Kittredge) Crane. His father, the managing owner of the Z. & W. M. Crane Company, paper manufacturers, was born in 1840, in Dalton, Mass. His mother was born in 1852, in Hinsdale, Mass., and resided in that place before her marriage. Two relatives have been Yale graduates: a brother, Charles Kittredge Crane, '03 S.; and a cousin, Winthrop Murray Crane, Jr., '04.

He prepared at Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and in college was a member of Psi Upsilon.

He is unmarried.

Crane is manager of the Old Berkshire Mills Company, paper manufacturers of Dalton, Mass. He writes:

"After graduation went abroad for the summer. In the fall went to work in one of my father's paper mills in Dalton, Mass. My health was poor and in May, 1901, I went out West, going first to Jackson's Hole, Wyo. Was in the West two years, principally in the Rocky Mountain region. Got up North into the Selkirks in British Columbia and South into the Lower California Peninsula after sheep—spent the time in shooting, fishing, ranch life, and travel. Went to Philadelphia late in 1903, remaining there till July 7, 1904, when I returned home to Dalton and went to work again in the paper mills of the Old Berkshire Mills Company,—owned by my father and uncle, Messrs. Z and W. M. Crane. In 1907 I became manager of the company—my present position."

Frank Taylor Crawford

Residence, 673 Sheridan Road, Chicago, Ill.

Business address, Washington Boulevard and Morgan Street, Chicago, Ill.

Born August 16, 1877, in Mansfield, Ohio, the son of Benjamin T. Crawford and Aurelia (Taylor) Crawford. His father, now retired, was president of the National Biscuit Company, manufacturers, and was born September 7, 1843, in New Carlisle, Ohio. Crawford is purchasing agent and assistant manager in the flour department of the National Biscuit Company in Chicago, Ill. He writes:

"I filled out this blankity blank up to this point three months ago—and there I stuck. You ask the impossible—I have no story to tell. I haven't changed my occupation nor my place of residence since coming to Chicago ten years ago, and I haven't done anything of interest to anybody else. In fact I have gathered so much moss that I think it would now be out of the question for me to make much of a roll. I rubbed some of it off at New Haven last month, but, there is no doubt about it, I can't develop much speed."

Morton Starr Cressy

His father, born April 9, 1842, in Lowell, Mass., died January 29, 1910, in Washington, D. C., was a manufacturer and was president of the Draper Company. He was brevetted brigadier general at the close of the Civil War; was a member of Congress from 1892 to 1896, and from 1896 to 1900 was the United States ambassador to Italy. His mother, born August 31, 1843, in Nantucket, Mass., died February 18, 1884, in Hopedale, Mass., was a resident of Nantucket before her marriage. A brother, Arthur Joy Draper, graduated from Yale in Class of '97.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Exeter, and at St. Mark's School, and in college was a member of the second Banjo Club, Wigwam, Hé Boulé, Alpha Delta Phi, Senior Promenade and Triennial committees, and was a Class Historian.

He was married February 5, 1902, in Lexington, Ky., to Miss Matilda Grace Engman, daughter of Harry A. Engman, a manufacturer of Clear Water, Fla. They have four children, all born in Hopedale, Mass.:

Clare Hill Draper, Jr., born December 22, 1902; Grace Engman Draper, born February 23, 1905; George Draper, born April 4, 1908; and Lydia Joy Draper, born May 29, 1911.

At present Draper is partner and general manager of the C. F. Roper & Company, manufacturers of Hopedale, Mass. He is also president of the Milford Shoe Company and a director of the Milford National Bank, both of Milford, Mass. He writes:

"After graduation I entered the employment of Draper Company, Hopedale, Mass., later becoming a director. Stayed with them until 1907, when I resigned to enter partnership with C. F. Roper & Company. In the Draper Company, my work was along special lines of experiments and patents relating to inventions in cotton machinery. Have taken out some twenty-two patents, personally. Before leaving this company I was assistant superintendent and in charge of this department. In the C. F. Roper & Company I am interested in marketing improved accessories for motor boats, especially the Roper Safety Propeller. In 1905, I suffered a severe strain of my hip (afflicted with hip disease) and had a serious but successful operation. In 1907, took a European trip with Mrs. Draper, visiting England, Scotland, France, Switzerland, and Germany. Was road commissioner of the town of Hopedale, for nine years. Since my father's death this past winter have acted as executor of his estate. Have seen far too little of classmates.

"Am a member of New York and Boston Yale clubs, University Club of Boston, Boston Athletic Association, Maspenock Club of Hopedale (president), Nipmuck Canoe Club, Knight Templar, Mystic Shrine, and Knight of Pythias. My favorite recreations are tennis, automobiling, bridge, and Class reunions."

Dwight Chandler Drew

He is unmarried.

Eaton is New York manager and assistant treasurer of the Nonotuck Silk Company and the Brainerd & Armstrong Company. He writes:

"On leaving college in 1900, I traveled abroad for fifteen months, spending a large part of this time in Germany. Late in 1901, I entered the New York office of the Nonotuck Silk Company and remained there a little over a year, when I went to their factory in Florence, Mass., where I spent about ten months obtaining some idea of the manufacturing end of the spool silk business. In the fall of 1903, I went abroad and traveled for seven months. Ever since my return in 1904, I have been connected with the Nonotuck Silk Company and the Brainerd & Armstrong Company in New York. Am at present assistant treasurer and a director of both corporations. I have resided most of the time since 1904, in South Orange, N. J."

Richard Alvin Eble

Address, Box 50, Casa Verdugo, Calif.

Born March 10, 1878, in Newark, N. J., the son of William Eble and Susanna (Hill) Eble. His father, a meat and provision dealer, was born February 4, 1840, in Germany. His mother was born December 25, 1841, in Germany, and resided in New Jersey before her marriage.

He prepared for college at the Newark (N. J.) High School.

He was married December 24, 1908, in Oakland, Calif., to Miss Frances G. G. Stremmell, daughter of George Stremmell, a printer of Newark, N. J. Their only child died December 31, 1909.

Eble is a poultry raiser, residing in Casa Verdugo, Calif. He writes:

"After graduation was ill with throat trouble, which affected my ears. Entered New York Law School but hearing became so bad I left at end of first year and went to Colorado to recover in the fall of 1901. No improvement, so finally mined a bit. Having sufficient losses and experience I went to New Mexico, in 1903, trying my hands at various lines, then to Idaho, in 1904, to help out a concern in mining. Their money gave out, so I returned to Colorado. Came to California in 1905. Was with the Richards-Neustadt Construction Company learning concrete construction and handling statistical casts, etc., for three years. Then went to Christmas, Ariz., with the Saddle Mountain Mining Company as receiving and shipping clerk. The panic of 1907 closed plant, so I returned to California. Was married December 24, 1908, and bought a small ranch and am now studying and raising poultry, incidentally improving my hearing and health."

Christopher Pegues Ellerbe .

Residence, Ferguson, St. Louis County, Mo.

Business address, 610-614 Times Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Born December 15, 1878, in St. Louis, Mo., the son of Colonel Christopher P. Ellerbe, University of Virginia '68, and Mary Virginia (Wash) Ellerbe. His father, born March 1, 1846, in Dallas County, Ala., and died September 17, 1908, was a lawyer, practicing until his death, and was senior partner of the firm of Ellerbe & Ellerbe. His mother was born April 17, 1851, in Albemarle County, Va., and resided in St. Louis, Mo., before her marriage. She was educated in a convent, graduating in 1869.

He prepared at Smith Academy, St. Louis, Mo., and in college specialized in mathematics.

He is unmarried.

Ellerbe is senior member of the firm of Ellerbe & Brokaw (Princeton '01), lawyers of St. Louis, Mo. He writes:

"Being in somewhat of a hurry, I began the study of law in a law office in St. Louis, July 5, 1900. In the autumn, as an aid to my studies, I enrolled in the Law Department of Washington University in St. Louis. From that time on I devoted my spare (?) time to the trial of Justice of the Peace cases. June 3, 1901, I took and passed the Missouri Bar examination, and began the practice of law. A year later the law school presented me with the degree of LL.B. I was associated with the firm of Ellerbe, Waddell & Hereford, of which I later became a member. In 1903 the firm name was changed to Ellerbe & Ellerbe, which, after the death of my father in September, 1908, was changed again to the present name of Ellerbe & Brokaw. In May, 1903, I purchased the Ferris Wheel in Chicago, and promoted a company which brought the wheel down to the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. In November, 1904, the vicissitudes of the show business, and the law business, coupled with the entertainment of friends who attended the Fair, had so undermined my health that it was necessary for me to go to the Southwest. I was absent from St. Louis four years, in pursuit of health—and caught it. November, 1904, until January, 1906, I worked as a cowhand in Southern Arizona—pay thirty dollars per month. January, 1906, until November, 1906, I was special attorney for the banking house of Adams-Phillips Company of Los Angeles—I lived in Pasadena, Calif. In November, 1906, I returned to Arizona and became foreman of the cattle outfit I had previously worked for. Also was elected secretary of the Arizona Cattle Growers Association, and had a law office in Tombstone, Ariz., where I spent one month out of every six. Returned to St. Louis, September, 1908, and resumed the practice of law; was deputy sheriff of Cochise County, Ariz., from 1906 to 1908."

Frank Edson Field

Address, Tsining, Shantung, China.

Born October 23, 1872, in Bureau County, Ill., the son of George P. Field and Mary Frances (Griffin) Field. His father was a farmer and was born July 22, 1840, in Maine. His mother was born March 13, 1842, in Bureau County, Ill., and resided in Princeton, Ill., before her marriage.

He prepared at the Dover (Ill.) High School and Academy, and graduated from Western (Toledo, Iowa) College '99, entering Yale in Senior year. In college he specialized in history, taking honors in that subject.

He is unmarried.

At present Field is a missionary under the American Presbyterian Board. He writes:

"From 1901 to 1904 I studied in Union Theological Seminary and Columbia University, receiving B.D. degree from the former, and the M.A. from the latter in 1903; spending still a further year in further post-graduate study—mainly in sociology and economics.

"In 1904 was appointed missionary to China, reaching my first 'field'—Weihsien, Shantung, in February, 1905. Here I remained two and one-half years, during which time I took part in the famine distribution in Kiangsu Province, to which relief America contributed more than all other countries combined. In September, 1907, I was transferred to Tsining, another station of the same Mission, located on the Grand Canal. Here I have been continuously except for a period of about six months—spent in a short furlough in America. Four days from the nearest railroad station, in the second largest city in the Province, a city of 200,000 people—our visitors are few and I think I have seen no Yale classmate since coming to China, so far as I remember. We in China, perhaps more than you in America, feel the loss of Warren Seabury—he was a splendid fellow.”

Henry Martyn Field

John Bryant Hartwell

Residence, 29 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, Mass.

Permanent mail address, Care John B. Branch, Providence

Washington Insurance Company, Providence, R. I.

Born September 6, 1878, in Providence, R. I., the son of Mortimer Hall Hartwell, Brown '70, and Jane Anthony (Mowry) Hartwell. His father, born March 3, 1849, in Grosvenor, R. I., is a member of the firm of Hartwell & Richards Company, and is also a member of the Providence Common Council and the Corporation of Brown University. His mother was born in Providence, R. I. Three brothers have graduated at Yale: Everett Smith Hartwell, '04, Mortimer Hall Hartwell, '07, and Arthur Mowry Hartwell, '11.

He prepared at Worcester Academy and in college specialized in science. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, the Elihu Club, and a member of the Class Day Committee.

He is unmarried.

Hartwell is at present assistant in anatomy at the Harvard Medical School. He writes:

"In the fall of 1900 I came to Boston, with the Harvard Medical School as a business address and home address at 83 St. Botolph Street. During the second half of the first year in the school, owing to the illness of one of the assistants in physiological chemistry, I tried to fill his place and there had my first experience in teaching—my own classmates. During the second year I was appointed one of two head prosectors in anatomy. At the beginning of the third year I changed my residence to 93 Mt. Vernon Street. In the course of this year I received my election to the Boylston Medical Society—an undergraduate medical club. During the fourth year I became a member of the Æsculapian Society. In the spring of this year, 1904, I began my service as surgical house officer on the West Service of the Massachusetts General Hospital. In June, 1904, I graduated from the medical school 'magna cum laude,' first man in the Class. During my sixteen months service in the hospital I got a 'septic hand' and had to take an enforced vacation of six weeks, the latter month of which I used in taking a sea trip to Mexico and return. In September, 1905, I entered the Boston Lying-in Hospital and served six months there as house officer. In May, 1906, I opened an office at 483 Beacon Street, Boston. From February, 1907, to June, 1907, I was in attendance on an obstetrical case in Porto Rico.

"In September, 1907, I moved my office to present quarters, 29 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, and became assistant to Dr. James G. Mumford, which position I held for two years. I am now assisting several men in their surgical work but not as a regular assistant. I see a few surgical cases during the course of a year, but have attained no mark of even slight distinction and have had no hospital appointments except at the Boston Dispensary as 'district physician' from July 1, 1907, to September 1, 1908, when I resigned and became an 'assistant' in anatomy at the Harvard Medical School, which position I still hold.

"Charles Stetson is the only man in the Class I see with any degree of frequency."

He prepared at the Peddie Institute, Hightstown, N. J., and in college specialized in Biblical literature and art.

He is unmarried.

Hills is secretary of religious education at the West Side Young Men's Christian Association of New York City. He writes:

"Spent two years in Yale School of the Fine Arts; went to New York immediately after graduation and opened up a studio on Twenty-third Street with Geo. E. Westcott, another Yale art student. For two years engaged in more or less active contribution to the funny sheets of the New York Sun, New York Times, and New York Telegram, said contribution consisting both of reading matter and so-called 'comics'—mostly the latter. An accident to my partner caused me to go into another line, namely architecture. For two years I remained in the employ of Dehli & Howard of New York, as draughtsman, after which I secured a position as draughtsman with Mowbray & Uffinger, a firm of New York architects whose specialty was banks. The panic was felt by us three months before it occurred and the office force was decreased by this firm. I was among the decreasees. For several years I had been an active though lay worker in the Young Men's Christian Association and just about this time an opening occurred in this work which friends were very anxious I should fill. This I refused to consider but afterward reconsidered the matter and entered the association work. My special province is religious education, a work in which I have been engaged for three years, in the West Side Young Men's Christian Association of New York, the largest in the country.

"I have spent fifteen weeks abroad studying mostly in Italy and have gained a good working knowledge of Italian, which is of special use in my work. Delivered talks to over 13,000 industrial workers last year in English and this year essayed a talk in Italian. Have two classes a week of Italians who are studying English.

"My favorite recreation is walking. Last summer I enjoyed a walking trip over the Alps. Have seen most of the '1900' fellows who are located in the city."

George Lyman Hinckley

Residence, 136 Newberry Street, Boston, Mass.

Business address, Care Boston Public Library, Boston, Mass.

Permanent address, 54 Prospect Street, Northampton, Mass.

Born July 6, 1879, in Northampton, Mass., the son of Henry Rose Hinckley and Mary Wright (Barrett) Hinckley. His father, born December 20, 1838, in Northampton, Mass., is a retired manufacturer, at one time treasurer of the Northampton Cutlery Company. He is a graduate of Yale in the Class of '59, and received the degree M.A. from that University in 1862 and LL.B. from Harvard in 1864. His mother was born January 18, 1838, in Northampton, Mass., and resided in that place before her marriage. Besides his father the following relatives graduated from Yale: his great great grandfather, Samuel Hinckley, 1781; great great uncle, George Hinckley, 1810; great grandfather, Jonathan Huntington Lyman, 1802; and four brothers, Edward Barrett

Hinckley, '89, Donald Rose Hinckley, '92, Henry Barrett Hinckley, '92, and Benjamin Barrett Hinckley, '97.

He prepared at Williston Seminary, and in college specialized in history, economics, and languages. He held a Philosophical Oration stand and graduated fifth in rank.

He is unmarried.

" At present Hinckley is cataloger in the Boston Public Library, Boston, Mass. He writes:

"On October 1, 1900, I began work at the Forbes Library, Northampton, Mass., where I remained until April 18, 1903. On May 4, 1903, I began work at the Boston Public Library as cataloger. I stayed there until April 10, 1907, when a breakdown from overwork made a rest necessary. I returned to the Boston Public Library in my former capacity, January 1, 1910, and am still there. At present I am engaged in cataloging the Allen A. Brown dramatic collection, recently presented to the Boston Public Library.

"In the summer of 1900 I took a trip on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River. In the summer of 1901 I traveled three months in Europe and I was again in Europe from the first of June, 1907, to the end of June, 1908. This last trip, undertaken for my health, proved a failure and after much sickness I returned home to recover. Part of this last trip I was in Italy.

"I am a life member of the American Library Association, a member of the Massachusetts Library Club and the Western Massachusetts Library Club. I have been president of the Convent Club since its foundation in 1901. I took an M.A. at Yale in 1906."

He was married August 28, 1901, in Decherd, Tenn., to Miss Maud Terrill, daughter of James W. Terrill, a teacher of San Angelo, Texas.

Hopkins is now headmaster of the Lake Placid School. He writes:

"I was operated on at the Presbyterian Hospital June 10, 1900, and after recovery went to Bay Pond in the Adirondacks, where I stayed until October 8. Then I went to Tennessee and remained until after Christmas, when I went to the Hill School, where I taught until April, 1902. In the summer of 1901, I was married. Symptoms of a return of the trouble for which I was operated on made it necessary that I give up my position at the Hill and go to the Adirondacks. I took a Hill School boy with me and tutored him until the June examinations. In the summer I camped at Rainbow Lake. In the autumn I had two boys to tutor and went with them to Lake Placid. P. C. Ransom arranged with me to join him in the winter in Florida. With the two boys I had and those he had, we started, that winter, the Adirondack-Florida School, which has its winter home in Florida and the rest of the year is at Rainbow Lake. I continued in that school until June, 1905. In the autumn of 1905 I organized the Lake Placid School and spent the winter term at Magnolia Springs, Florida. The next year I made the winter home at Cocoanut Grove and since that time the school has its fall and spring terms at Lake Placid and the winter term at Cocoanut Grove, Fla."

Lombardi is a mining engineer and is superintendent of developments and construction with the Kern Trading & Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Southern Pacific Railway Company. He writes:

"After graduating from Yale I went to Portland, Ore., and from there, shortly afterward, to Berkeley, Calif., where I took a course in mining engineering, specializing in geology, at the University of California, receiving a degree of B.S. in 1904. Was elected a member of Sigma Xi, University of California Chapter, in 1910. At times during this course, I worked in various mines in California and Oregon. After graduation at the University of California, I spent some months on a prospecting trip in the Cascade Mountains, Washington. In the winter of 1904-5, I took a position with the Southern Pacific Company as assistant geologist and was shortly transferred to The Kern Trading & Oil Company, a subsidiary corporation, as engineer and am now with the latter company as superintendent of developments and construction, spending a large part of the time in the oil fields of this state. I am also engaged in fruit ranching in the Santa Clara Valley, Calif. I seldom see a Yale man—not once in six months I am sorry to say. Any old recreation is a prime favorite with me."

Gilbert Lovell

Residence, Changteh, Hunan, China.

Permanent address, 112 Crescent Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Born June 16, 1879, in Plainfield, N. J., the son of Leander Newton Lovell and Phebe Borden (Durfee) Lovell. His father, born in November, 1837, in Fall River, Mass., is a merchant and senior member of the firm of Borden & Lovell, a coal mining concern. His mother was born in 1842, in Fall River, Mass., and resided in that place before her marriage. Three brothers have graduated from Yale: Arthur Lovell, '92, Harry Borden Lovell, '96, and Richard Leonard Lovell, '07 S.

He prepared at Leal's School for Boys, Plainfield, N. J., and in college was a member of the College Choir for one year and a Dwight Hall worker for four years.

He was married August 10, 1904, in Mercer, Pa., to Miss Florence Ellen Bell, Wellesley '01, daughter of William S. Bell, a retired business man of Grove City, Pa. They have two children: Leander Bell Lovell, born May 14, 1906, in Siangtan, Hunan, China; and Katherine Durfee Lovell, born June 2, 1908, in Changteh, Hunan, China.

Lovell is a missionary and is connected with the Hunan Mission of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, U. S. A., and is principal of the John Miller School, Changteh, Hunan, China. He writes:

"The summer after graduation was spent in the mountains of New Hampshire in a boys' camp and the following fall I entered the Hartford Theological Seminary, where I roomed with Warren Seabury during the three years of the course. In the summer of 1901, I was student missionary for the American Sunday School Union in Dane County, Wis., with Madison as my headquarters. On graduating from the seminary and getting my B.D. degree, I went to Brooklyn, N. Y., as assistant pastor of the City Park Branch, an institutional church situated near the Navy Yard at 209 Concord Street, and a branch of the First Presbyterian Church. During my eight months of work there (from the summer of 1903 to the spring of 1904) I lived in the building. In the spring, I was forced to leave to build up my health for work as a foreign missionary. Soon after our marriage on August 10, 1904, Mrs. Lovell and I left for China, Warren Seabury (who had attended me at the wedding) going on the same steamer. We sailed from San Francisco, October 1, and arrived at Shanghai the last of the month. We went on up the Yangtse to Hankow, where Warren was to spend the winter. Mrs. Lovell and I went straight to Siangtan, Hunan, where we arrived November 10, 1904. Siangtan is about thirty miles south of Changsha, the capital of the province and the seat of the Yale College. Two weeks after arriving at our station, Mrs. Lovell and I began housekeeping and started work on the Chinese language. One year of study was hardly finished when I was put in charge of a boys' boarding school, and although the school had only sixteen or eighteen pupils, my work was hard enough. In the fall of 1907 we were transferred to Changteh, our present station. Since our coming I have built a compound wall, a three-story building for a girls' boarding school, and part of a proposed building for a boys' boarding school. Each school is planned to accommodate sixty pupils of grammar and high school grades. Mrs. Lovell opened the girls' school in March, 1909, and I opened the boys' school at the same time. Warren Seabury was the classmate of whom I have seen the most. At the time of his death he was making us a visit. Since then I have seen no classmate."

In the fall of 1911 he returned to the United States on a year's vacation.

"Strenuous (?) summer in 1900, cruising about Long Island Sound. October, 1900, entered the Easton, Pa., shops of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company, of New York, to obtain practical engineering and mechanical knowledge. (Had missed the practical side of this during my early morning hours with dear old Prof. 'Billy' Sumner, as well as during my architectural and mathematical efforts notwithstanding a course in navigation and nautical astronomy, which has just been of great assistance in connection with the recent Comet.) February, 1901, went to Salt Lake City for the same company as assistant manager (and chief engineer!!!) of their branch office there. December, 1901, came East to get married, and took my wife back to Salt Lake City in April, 1902. April, 1903, moved to Chicago, to act as assistant manager there, remaining, however, only about six months. The son and heir put in his appearance while there. October, 1903, returned to New York, being appointed assistant sales manager of the same company, and lived at Plainfield. January, 1905, sailed for London to take charge of the company's Continental branch at Berlin. The trifling territory consisted of Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Italy, Austria-Hungary, Balkan States, Russia, Siberia, and Scandinavia. Saw a good part of these countries before moving to London in May, 1908, where we remained just one year, returning to God's Country on Memorial Day (hence the holiday), 1909.

"Subsequently the quiet life here at home and down on the shore."

Charles Wylie McKelvey

Residence, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y.

Business address, 31 West Twelfth Street, New York City.

Born January 2, 1878, in Bridgeport, Conn., the son of Hugh A. McKelvey and Doltea (Hotchkiss) McKelvey. His father was a clergyman. His mother was a resident of Sharon, Conn., before her marriage.

He prepared at Hotchkiss School and in college was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Scroll and Key.

He was married October 8, 1907, in Orange, N. J., to Miss Susan Adams Delano, Bryn Mawr '07, daughter of Eugene Delano, a banker of New York City. They have one son: Delano McKelvey, born August 15, 1908.

McKelvey is at present associated in the practice of law with the firm of Stewart & Shearer of 45 Wall Street, New York City. He writes:

"I have lived in New York City, Orange, N. J., and Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y. I graduated from the New York Law School in 1903, receiving the degree of LL.B., and was admitted to the New York State Bar in that year. I have since practiced law in New York City and was for a time special partner in the firm of Benjamin, Ferguson & McMurtry of 49 Wall Street, New York City. I am a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club, the University Club, and the Yale Club of New York City."

Alexander Louis McKenzie

Address, Walpole, Mass.

Born August 28, 1872, in Wareham, Mass., the son of John McKenzie and Margaret May (McDonald) McKenzie. His father, born January 1, 1832, in Rosshire, Scotland, was a wrought-iron maker and an employee of the Franconia Iron Company. His mother was born May 20, 1847, in St. Ann's, Nova Scotia, and resided in Plymouth, Mass., before her marriage.

He prepared at the Williston Seminary and in college specialized in Biblical literature.

He was married July 23, 1902, to Miss Sophie S. Hammond, Oberlin ex-'96, daughter of Arthur H. Hammond, captain of a whaling back vessel of Wareham, Mass.

McKenzie is a clergyman, and until recently was associated with the Union Congregational Church in Winthrop, Mass. In February, 1911, he received a call, which he accepted, taking charge of the Congregational Church in Walpole, Mass. He had been connected with the church in Winthrop, for five years, during which time he had successfully carried on his pastoral work, and increased the church membership to three times its original number. He writes:

"After graduating in 1900, from the academic department I became a student at Yale Divinity School, and graduated in 1902, with degree of B.D. I went at once to my first pastorate, the First Congregational Church in Wallingford, Vt., and remained in charge until my call to the Union Congregational Church of Winthrop, Mass., which I accepted. I took up the work there June 1, 1906. Except to meet them incidentally, I see of our classmates only Dr. S. A. Weston of the Pilgrim Press, Boston, a man who is now in full charge of the Pilgrim Teacher, an important religious education periodical of country-wide circulation and influence. As a favorite recreation trout-fishing leads with me, a month of it each spring in Maine or New Hampshire being necessary for my theological clarity. Politically I am seldom in eruption, but constantly threatening. Have made several stump speeches. Am library trustee of the Frost Public Library, Winthrop, Mass., a member of the Boston Congregational Club, and the Young Men's Congregational Club of Boston, Mass."

*William Chase Mackey

Died 1912

Born January 7, 1877, in Franklin, Pa., the son of Captain Charles W. Mackey and Lauretta Barnes (Fay) Mackey. His father is a lawyer and was born November 19, 1840, in Franklin, Pa. His mother was born December 8, 1840, in Columbus, Ohio, and resided in that place before her marriage. His great grandfather, Major Samuel Barnes, was a member of the Class of Yale 1772, and his brother, Cyrus Fay Mackey, graduated with the Class of '96.

He prepared at the De Veaux School, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and at Williston Seminary, in Easthampton, Mass. In college he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Banjo Club.

He is unmarried.

Mackey attended the Columbia Law School for one year and was general agent on the Pacific Coast for the Franklin Rolling Mill & Foundry Company for two years. Since that time he has been general manager of the Franklin Drug & Chemical Company.

He is a member of the Yale Club of New York and the Nursery Club of Franklin, Pa.

Mackey went to Hong Kong in June, 1911, as a representative of the Standard Oil Company, to be connected with their office in that city. January 12, 1912, word was received by his family in Franklin, Pa., that he was very ill with heart disease. He died in the Government Hospital at Hong Kong, Sunday, January 14, and was buried in that city on January 17, services being held in the English Church, and a memorial service at the same hour at his home in Franklin. As soon as word of his death reached New York, the following letter was sent to his family in behalf of the Class of 1900:

"We, the friends and classmates of your son and brother, William Chase Mackey, having learned with great sorrow of his death in Hong Kong, China, desire to extend to you our most sincere sympathy and to express our individual sense of loss, in the passing of one who was loved by us all, for the man that he was. It is this keen realization of the loss to us, as friends and classmates, which gives us a full appreciation of the greatness of your loss and sorrow, and prompts us, at this time, to send you this inadequate testimonial of our sympathy.

Permanent mail address, Care Yale Club, 30 West Forty-fourth Street, New York City.

Born December 6, 1875, in Houston, Texas, the son of Charles Miller and Annexa (Braslear) Miller. His father, a planter, was born in Murfreesboro, Tenn. His mother was born in 1845, in Houston, Texas, and resided in that place before her marriage.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college specialized in English.

He is unmarried.

Miller is a mining engineer engaged in independent practice. He writes:

"The summer of 1900 I spent in Quebec, recovering from a surgical operation. I studied law at the University of Texas. Took two years' course in one. Then I went to the Philippine Islands (1901) as teacher of English under the Civil Government. This position I resigned in 1902 to work for the Canton-Hankow Railway in China. Previous to this I had spent two months traveling in Japan. After living a short while in Shanghai I moved to Canton and did much of the field work on the location of the railway from Canton to Kong Moon. Returning to the States in 1903, I came by the way of Suez, Italy, and England, completing the trip around the world. On reaching New York I was employed as an engineer in Fishkill Village, N. Y., taking topography for the Commission on Additional Water Supply. Later in the summer of 1903, this work being finished, I began work with the United States Coal & Coke Company in Tug River, W. Va., as draftsman. When I resigned in 1904 I was chief topographer on this work. Returning to New York, I accepted the position of superintendent of the Balsas Valley Company, operating mines in the State of Guerrero, Mexico. I remained at these mines for two years and was resident manager of this company when I left their service in 1906. Returning to New York, I attended the Sexennial reunion. Then I took the management of the mines of Juan Pedrazzini in Arizpe, Sonora, Mexico. I resigned here in 1907. The fall of 1907

I spent partly in the Province of Ontario, Canada, on mining business. The winter I passed in Texas. In the spring of 1908 I returned to New York and then went to Urique, Chihuahua, Mexico, as superintendent of the Rosario Mining & Smelting Company. In the fall of 1908 I was appointed general manager of the Balsas Valley Company. I was in the City of Mexico and the State of Guerrero on their business until the spring of 1909. I returned to New York and at the end of the year I went to Chinacates, Durango, Mexico, where I designed a mill and cyanide plant for the Maria Gold Mining Company. Soon after my return to New York in 1910, I went to the Province of Antioquia, Republic of Columbia, South America, to make an examination of some placer mines there. In the intervals between these trips I have done much work of a consulting nature dealing with mines and mining investments.

"I am a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity, American Institute of Mining Engineers, and of several scientific societies and social clubs in New York, Houston, and Mexico."

Born October 12, 1868, in Westport, Conn., the son of Edward Pidgeon and Emily Eliza (Vail) Pidgeon. His father, born July 11, 1835, in New York City, was never engaged in active business. His mother was born March 26, 1840, in Chester, N. Y., and resided in that place before her marriage.

He prepared with a tutor and in college specialized in languages.

He is unmarried.

Pidgeon was a student of medicine at the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Hospital from the fall of 1900 to the summer of 1902, and at the College of Physicians and Surgeons from the fall of 1902 to the summer of 1903. At present he has taken up farming.

William Lorimer Porter

Address, Monmouth, Ill.

Born February 11, 1874, in Olean, Ill., the son of William W. Porter.

He prepared for college at Tarkio College, where he received the degree of B.A. in 1896. He entered the Class in Senior year.

He was married in June, 1904, in New Haven, Conn., to Miss Carolyn B. Bassett, daughter of William S. Bassett, of New Haven, Conn. They have one daughter: Katherine Porter, born December 2, 1906.

Porter taught at Tarkio for some time after graduation and received the degree of M.A. from Yale in 1902. Soon after his marriage he went to the Gordon Mission College at Ramal, Pindi, Punjab, India, and remained four years as a teacher. At the time of the riot in 1907, when the natives of Ramal decided that they were tired of foreign rule and foreign religion, a mob chased the Porter family out of their house and into the mission, destroying everything they owned and hurling missiles after them, one striking Mrs. Porter. Owing to the subsequent ill health of Mrs. Porter, they returned to this country in January, 1910.

Porter accepted a position in Knoxville College, Knoxville, Tenn., but has since resigned to become professor of science in Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., his present position.

Horace Martin Poynter

Address, Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

Born July 21, 1879, in Shelbyville, Ky., the son of Wiley Taul Poynter, D.D., and Clara Davis (Martin) Poynter. His father, born August 14, 1838, was a Methodist minister, and was principal and owner of the Science Hill School. His mother was born December 17, 1846, near Paris, Ky., and resided in that place before her marriage. She was at one time a member of the Delaware (Ohio) Wesleyan College. The following relatives have graduated from Yale: two second cousins, John Griffith Martin, '36, and Hezekiah Davis Martin, '47; and two cousins, Ralph Martin Shaw, '90, and Henry Pleasant Shaw, '01.

He prepared at the Science Hill School, in Shelbyville, Ky., the Webb School, Bell Buckle, Tenn., and at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college specialized in philosophy and classics. He won a Second Berkeley Prize Latin Composition, Third Lucius F. Robinson Latin Prize, and honors in philosophy in Senior year. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the Yale Track Team, running on the four-mile relay in Freshman year, receiving a "Y" in Junior year for the two-mile relay at Pennsylvania, and in the dual meet with Harvard in 1900 he won third place in the half mile.

He was married July 14, 1909, in Oak Park, Ill., to Miss Elsie Frances Pitkin, Wellesley '06, daughter of Edward Hared Pitkin, a wholesale dealer in china and crockery of Oak Park, Ill.

Poynter is an instructor in Greek and Latin at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. He writes:

"The summer following graduation was spent in Seal Harbor and Bar Harbor, tutoring. In the fall I began work at the King School, Stamford, Conn., where I spent two years. In the fall of 1902, I came to Andover and hope to remain here, unless the bottom drops out of the study of Greek and Latin. Di avertant omen! In the summer of 1903, I instituted a boys' camp at the First Connecticut Lake, N. H.; had a fine time with my sole pupil, and lost enough money to keep me in debt a couple of years. The next summer (1904) I went to Lake Temagami, Ontario, as a member of the staff of the Keewaytin Camp; went north over the height of land and returned by the Missisaga River to Lake Huron; the rapids of the Missisaga are great fun, but don't use a birch bark canoe; I did and lost all my films and camera, besides being wet for fourteen days. At Desborats, Ontario, met the present Mrs. Poynter and count the trip the best piece of work I ever did. The woods fever was in my bones the next year, but I spent six weeks of the summer of 1905 at the Yale Summer School, the remainder in New York and Kentucky. The summer of 1906 was spent in Nantucket, Mass., and Desborats, Ontario. In 1907, I bought a little bit of woodland in Nova Scotia, where I have a rough log cabin and good trout fishing; the cabin I built myself with the aid of a friend and we spent that summer and the following (1908) there, doing our own work and accumulating health and fish stories; am almost qualified to become a nature fakir. Spent a few weeks at the end of vacation in Genesee, N. Y., and Kentucky. Last summer (1909) I was married and went to Canada for a couple of months; returned to Andover in September and have a home at last, thank God! after fifteen years of school and college dormitories, boarding houses et id genus omne. Glad to see any of the bunch at any time.

"I am a member of the Seminary Church, the Classical Association of New England; am possessed of $402, according to statement received from the bank to-day, good health; have my garden most in and face the future hopefully.

"Have seen Ken Lippincott, Jack Hartwell, and Zwei Walworth more than most others, but there are quite a few whom I see at the Boston Yale Club at intervals. Favorite recreations are camping and 'trouting' or anything out doors."

Ricker is consulting physician at the Littleton Hospital and for the Board of Health of Newbury. He writes:

"After leaving college I went to the Johns Hopkins Medical School for four years and graduated in 1904. During the last two summers of that time I acted as resident pathologist at the Montreal General Hospital, and after graduation I was one of the resident staff of this same hospital during the years 1904 and 1905.

"On July 31, 1905, I opened a physician's office here in Wells River, Vt., and have been here in active practice ever since. I do not know as I have any striking events to tell about, 'Fortune and the World' having used me well. Sadness has avoided me, and I am trying to fill my own small niche in this great world doing my duty, first to my God, second to my Country, and third to my Yale, the embodiment of noblest ideals and highest aspirations."

He was married July 27, 1909, in Tempe, Ariz., to Miss Nona Kingsbury, Marlborough School '07, daughter of W. J. Kingsbury, a banker and cattleman of Tempe, Ariz. Mrs. Schweppe died at Tempe, Arizona, on December 4, 1910. Their only child, Viola Jewett Schweppe, was born October 24, 1910.

Schweppe is president of the South Side Realty Company and vice-president of the Farmers & Merchants Bank, in Tempe, Ariz. He writes:

"After leaving college I went into the offices of McIntyre, Marshall & Company, on Wall Street. Didn't like it and only stayed three months. Went to Costa Rica and became a manager of the United Fruit Company. Later became manager of the Northern Railway Company of Costa Rica. After seven and a half years in that republic I came to Arizona. Had yellow fever in Costa Rica that laid me up for a year. While in Costa Rica I lived in San José, the capital, and in Port Limon on the coast. I like Arizona the best of any country I have ever been in. Became a Pythian Knight in 1910."

In 1911, was elected a director of the Overland Telephone & Telegraph Company, with headquarters in Phoenix, Ariz.

*Warren Bartlett Seabury

Died 1907

Born September 17, 1877, in Lowell, Mass., the son of Rev. Joseph Bartlett Seabury, Amherst '69, and Martha Daniels (Mason) Seabury. A brother, Mortimer Ashmead Seabury, graduated in 1909.

He prepared for college at the High School in Dedham, Mass., and the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn.

He was unmarried.

After graduation from college Seabury entered the Hartford Theological Seminary, receiving the degree of B.D. in 1903. He spent the following year in the study of comparative religion in the Yale Graduate School, and received the degree of M.A. in 1904.

While a student in Hartford, November 3, 1902, he was formally called to join the Yale Mission in China, but wished further time for study before undertaking the work. He was ordained to the ministry in Hartford, June 9, 1904, and sailed for China, October 1. During the next two years he was mainly engaged in the study of the Chinese language—the first year at Hankow—and in the difficult task of negotiating for land in Changsha, in the Province of Hunan, upon which to establish the Mission College. The summer of 1906 he spent in actively superintending the repairs on the temporary quarters for the College, since named Ya-li, where simple opening exercises were conducted by Seabury, November 16, 1906. Since then he had given instruction in English branches in the college and continued the study of the native language.

He lost his life by drowning, July 29, 1907. A party of five, all of whom were engaged in educational work—Mann at St. John's College, Shanghai; Kemp at Boone College, Wuchang; Hume, Gage, and Seabury, at the Yale Mission—left Kuling that morning and visited "White Deer College," about ten miles distant by a mountain road through a beautiful country. On the return Seabury slipped on a large rock wet from the heavy rains which had fallen during the day, and being unable to recover his balance, slid into the stream which flowed over the lower side of the rock, and was carried over a fall into a deep pool. On rising to the surface he took two or three strokes and then disappeared. In attempting to rescue him one of his companions, Rev. Arthur S. Mann, Yale '99, was also drowned.

A memorial service was held in the First Congregational Church, Wellesley Hills, Mass., September 21, 1907, and a memorial tablet was placed in the lobby of Woolsey Hall by the Class at the time of their decennial reunion. A biography, called "The Vision of a Short Life," a memorial of Warren Bartlett Seabury, by his father, has been published by the Riverside Press, Cambridge, Mass.

He prepared at the Connecticut Literary Institution in Suffield, Conn., and in college specialized in art.

He is unmarried.

Sikes is a designer, editor, and salesman of advertising literature and catalogs. He is treasurer of the Duysters Press, Inc., and vice-president of the Inslee Company, commercial photographers. He writes:

"After graduation I continued my studies in the Yale Art School for four years or until June, 1904. In this Department of the University I was twice a contestant (in 1902 and 1904) in the final competition for the William Wirt Winchester Foreign Scholarship. I did not win this Scholarship, but during the four years several smaller prizes and scholarships were awarded me—John F. Weir Scholarship for two years, and several money prizes. In 1901, I joined Book and Bond. During most of my Art School course I served on the Graduate School Committee of Young Men's Christian Association as representative from the Art Department.

"During the four years after graduation, spent in the Yale Art School, I kept my position with the Yale Coöp, as throughout my college course. The summers of 1901, 1902, and 1903 were occupied with clerking at a private yacht club, the Pequot Association, Morris Cove, Conn. The fall of 1904 found me in Suffield, Conn., fitting up a studio of drawing and painting. There for a year or more I taught drawing in the Connecticut Literary Institution and had private pupils and painted.

"In January, 1906, I left Suffield and came to New York City. My first location in a business way was with George Grantham Bain, news illustrator and special correspondent. After two months an opportunity with the Duysters Press was presented and there I stayed for nearly a year. Then the Rockwell Printing Company for six months served as my headquarters. In July, 1907, I began service with A. Mugford, catalog specialist, of Hartford, and New York, and continued this relationship until January 15, 1910. At that time I resumed active relations with the Duysters Press, Inc. In March, 1909, the Inslee Company elected me vice-president, and part of my time is devoted to the interests of this company as well as that of the Duysters Press, Inc."

He is unmarried.

Tennant is assistant teacher of English at the Stuyvesant High School. Of his recent life he writes:

"The witness, being sworn, deposeth: That being unable to tear himself away from New Haven, he began, in the fall of 1900, to teach in a small private school in Centerville—known to many as the location of the Roberts House; that in the fall of 1901 he removed to the Cedarcroft School, Summit, N. J., where he remained three years; that in the fall of 1904, having gathered together a goodly number of shekels, he went back to New Haven for post-graduate work, remaining three years; that in September, 1907, he began to teach English in the high school at Paterson, N. J., and that in September, 1909, he transferred the scene of his activities to the Stuyvesant High School, in the Borough of Manhattan.

"The witness further saith: That he is at present a member of the Yale Club of New York City and was a member of the Paterson Board of Trade; that he received the M.A. degree (in absentia) 1903, and the Ph.D. degree 1907, both from Yale; that as to a military record, he is a good runner; that his travels are like those of Goldsmith's vicar and are remarkably free from the noteworthy features—the murder, arson, burglary, divorce, graft, and suicide—which seem to mark the travels of everybody else in New York; and that he knows of no more pleasant recreation than to steal up to New Haven or down to Princeton, and as the winning run crosses the plate or the goal is kicked, to join in the delightful ante climax, 'For God, for country, and for Yale.'"

David Ogle Thomas

Residence, 37 Pennsylvania Avenue, Belleville, Ill.

Business address, National Bank Building, Belleville, Ill.

Charlton Brice Thompson

Residence, Wallace Avenue, Covington, Ky.

Business address, First National Bank Building, Covington, Ky.

Born March 3, 1879, in Covington, Ky., the son of Maurice de Kay Thompson and Jennie (Burdsall) Thompson. His father, born in October, 1847, in Georgetown, D. C., was a pork packer, and later became a broker. His mother was born in Covington, Ky., and resided in that place before her marriage.

He prepared with a tutor and in college specialized in history, literature, and economics. He won a Ten Eyck Prize in Junior year, a DeForest Prize in Senior year, and was one of the Class historians.

He was married June 25, 1905, in Ft. Thomas, Ky., to Miss Hallé Southgate, daughter of H. H. Southgate, a lumber dealer and contractor of Ft. Thomas, Ky.

Thompson is a lawyer. He writes:

"After leaving Yale I worked all summer at railroad construction, and by a stroke of luck, was able to enter the law school of the University of Cincinnati in the fall. The course took three years and I was duly graduated in June, 1903. My career at law school was not exciting, but I was taken into Phi Delta Phi, a law school society, and in the second year I was on the team which debated with the Louisville (Ky.) Law School, on the legal status of our insular possessions. After graduation some very lean years were encountered, notwithstanding which I had the courage to marry, on June 25, 1905. In the fall of 1905 I was appointed referee in bankruptcy, and held the position for a year or two. For several years I have been active in politics here, but have held no office except that of referee. However, I have held positions in the organization of the Democratic party, and I am now state executive committeeman for the sixth congressional district. It is not to be understood that I am a machine man, for I am a rank Insurgent. My different party positions have resulted from the fact that the reform element has ousted the machine.

"There is little more to tell. I have practiced law steadily and with fair success. Every year, when the salvation of the country or of my county is at stake, I make myself heard on the stump. That has been about the only break in the monotony of my life."

Elbert Nevius Sebring Thompson

Address, Iowa City, Iowa.

Born December 15, 1877, in West Orange, N. J., the son of Wilmot Haines Thompson and Laura Pamela (Garrigues) Thompson. His father was a teacher and principal of schools. Two brothers, Wilmot Haines Thompson, Jr., '98, and Charles Seymour Thompson, '02, are Yale graduates.

He prepared at the East Orange (N. J.) High School, and in college specialized in English literature. He won the McLaughlin English Prize, held a Philosophical Oration appointment, and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

He is unmarried.

Thompson is assistant professor of English at the State University of Iowa. He writes:

"I spent three years in the Yale Graduate School, and received in 1903 the degree, Ph.D. From 1903 to 1906, I taught English in Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa. From 1906 to 1909, I taught English in Yale College. In the fall of 1909 I accepted an assistant professorship of English in the State University of Iowa. I have spent four summers in European travel."

Warren Parsons Thorpe

Residence, 1523 Locust Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Thorpe is at present cost accountant and is connected with the Baldwin Locomotive Works as chief shop clerk. Since graduation his business life has been as follows: in Philadelphia, from October, 1900, to May, 1902, as clerk for the Union Petroleum Company; in New York, from January, 1903, to May, 1905, as salesman for the Westinghouse Machine Company; in Philadelphia, from August, 1905, to September, 1907, as salesman for the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and since September, 1907, as manufacturing accountant for the same company.

He is a member of the New York Yale Club, University Club of Philadelphia, New England Society of Pennsylvania, and the Merion Cricket Club.

Thorpe writes:

"I regret not being able to put the above in narrative form as commanded, but if you got up at 5.30 every morning and worked till 6 every night (Saturdays to 12:30 only) and if you had rheumatism in your fingers and if you had nervous indigestion causing baldness and irritability and if there were 40 people asking you, as you write, 127 different questions, mostly foolish, and if you were worn to the bone being a mere shadow of your former self, and if you hadn't received any notice of the Decennial reunion you wouldn't be able to trace your sparkling history in narrative form yourself. I tell you this in the utmost confidence. (n. b.) Also, I live opposite a church."

Charles Lewis Tiffany

Residence, 128 East Thirty-sixth Street, New York City.

Business address, 401 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

They have two sons: Charles Terry Treadway, Jr., born April 8, 1903; and Graham Richards Treadway, born March 8, 1907.

Treadway is president of the Bristol National Bank and treasurer of the New Departure Manufacturing Company. He writes:

"Immediately following Commencement, I went abroad, traveling through Great Britain and the continent of Europe for about four months. On my return home I became associated with the New Departure Manufacturing Company, as treasurer, which position I am still feebly holding down. For the first five years of my business life I was interested in civic matters, incidentally serving for a time as member of the local high school committee as secretary. After my father's death early in 1905, I was elected to several directorates which his death made vacant, among them those of the Bristol National Bank, the Bristol Water Company, the Bristol & Plainville Tramway Company, the Bristol Brass Company, the American Silver Company, the Horton Manufacturing Company and the Bristol Manufacturing Company. At the same time I became treasurer of the Horton Manufacturing Company, and vice-president of the Bristol National Bank, two years later succeeding to presidency upon the death of Mr. E. B. Dunbar, its president.

"During this time I have served as chairman of the Republican Town Committee, but have never sought other public office. I am at present assisting in the preparation of a new form of city government for Bristol, having been elected a member of a special commission for that purpose.

"I have been more or less active in the business end of the affairs of the Bristol Congregational Church. Am a member of the Yale Club of New York, Graduates Club of New Haven, and the Waterbury, Farmington, and Bristol clubs. I have always lived in Bristol."

He was married October 12, 1904, in Morristown, N. J., to Miss Adèle D'Orn, daughter of St. Ange D'Orn, a sugar planter of Martinique. They have four children: Robert Elisha Walker, born July 11, 1906; Adèle Marie Walker, born November 8, 1907; Louis Ernest Walker, born October 21, 1909; and Ferol Walker, born March 5, 1911.

Walker is a partner in the firm of William Salomon & Company, bankers. He writes:

"After graduation I went abroad for about three months to England, Germany, and France, returning in October and going to Boston, where I spent two years at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, receiving the degree of B.S. in 1902. During the summer of 1901 I worked at the Fore River Ship & Engine Company, Quincy, Mass. Upon graduation in 1902, I decided to give up straight engineering and went with Fisk & Robinson, bankers, New York, where my technical experience was of some value in making reports on various enterprises. In 1904, I left Fisk & Robinson and went with William Salomon & Company, bankers. I started as a statistician; in 1905 I went into the bond department, of which I became manager; in 1907 I was given joint power of attorney by the firm, in 1909 full power of attorney and in 1910 I became a full partner.

"I lived in New York from 1902 to 1909, when I moved to Morristown, N. J.

"I am a member of the Morris County Golf Club, The Lotus Club and The Recess."

"In the fall of 1900 I entered the Yale Law School, graduated three years later with the degree of LL.B. and was admitted to the Connecticut Bar. My active practice has consisted in making the 'baby' speech before the Bridgeport Bar at the annual dinner and turning down offers to represent various collection agencies. In the spring of 1904 I went abroad and traveled for two months in England and on the continent. Returning in August, 1904, I immediately entered the employment of the American Tube & Stamping Company in a minor capacity and have advanced to the position of auditor and cashier."

Rudolph Frederick Weichert

Address, Welsh, La.

Born December 13, 1875, in Danbury, Conn., the son of John Frederick Weichert and J. S. (Acker) Weichert. His father, born September 17, 1835, in Germany, was a hatter and furrier. His mother was born November 12, 1840, in Germany, and resided in Danbury, Conn., before her marriage.

He prepared at the Danbury (Conn.) High School, and in college specialized in political economy. He was a member of the Apollo Glee Club and received honors at graduation.

He was married November 15, 1905, in Houston, Texas, to Minnie Adella (Phillips) Byrd, daughter of M. Phillips, a farmer of Trinity, Texas. They have two sons, both born in Houston, Texas: Ernest Augustus Weichert, born May 4, 1907; and Rudolph Frederick Weichert, Jr., born October 11, 1908.

Weichert is president and general manager of the Gulf Coast Oil Company, Ltd. He writes:

"In July, 1900, after graduation I visited my uncle in East Texas, where he had large timber holdings and a saw mill in Call, Texas. I remained with him in various positions in an effort to familiarize myself with the lumber business until September, 1901. After a visit to my parents in Danbury, Conn., I took a clerical position in November, 1901, with the land department of the Kirby Lumber Company and Houston Oil Company (a combined department) in Houston, Texas, and after a series of four promotions became head of the department at $3,000 per year on February 1, 1904.

"I retained this position for three years and then resigned to manage the turpentine business of the Dom. Lumber Company, a Texas corporation, operating in Santo Domingo.

"After a year in Santo Domingo, I found things different from what I had expected and so returned to this country. Soon thereafter I organized the Gulf Coast Oil Company, Ltd., and moved on August 24, 1909, to Welsh, La., where we have our wells and holdings.

"While in Houston, Texas, I joined the Masons, Holland Lodge, No. 1, and the Thalian Club, the leading social organization there, of which I am still a member. Also when in Houston I was a member of a singing society of male voices, called the Quartette Society. No travels, except over the island of Santo Domingo and a month in the West. My favorite recreations are singing, hand ball, and horseback riding. The classmate I see most often is E. N. S. Thompson."

William Howard Weiss

Residence, 417 Liberty Street, N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Business address, 408 Frick Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Permanent mail address, Care George W. Weiss, Schuylkill Haven, Pa.

Born June 8, 1877, in Port Carbon, Schuylkill County, Pa., the son of George W. Weiss, Freeland Seminary (now Ursinus College) '70, and Harriet (Henderson) Weiss. His father, born January 25, 1844, in Milford Square, Pa., is teacher, supervisor, and superintendent of schools in Schuylkill County, and has received the degrees of Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy, the latter degree being honorary. His mother was born July 9, 1855, in Port Carbon, Pa., and resided in that place before her marriage. The following relatives have graduated from Yale: a second cousin, John Shelly Weinberger, '59, now professor emeritus of Greek at Ursinus College; and a brother, George Harold Weiss, '07.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Exeter, and in college specialized in history, political science, and law. He graduated with High Oration stand, receiving mention at Commencement of honor work on his thesis on political science and law.

He is unmarried.

Weiss is learning the coal business and is connected with the Pittsburgh Buffalo Company of Pittsburgh, Pa. He writes:

"After leaving college in June, 1900, I was engaged to take charge of the schools in Summit Hill, Pa., and for two years I acted as principal of the high school and supervisor of schools in that village. During my stay in Summit Hill I was appointed by the state superintendent of public instruction as a member of the Board of Permanent Certificates. I joined the Keystone Club in Lansford, Pa., during my stay in Summit Hill,—a social club with political activities. From Summit Hill, I went to Ware, Mass., in September, 1902, and took charge of the high school in that town. I remained five years in Ware, acting as headmaster of the high school. These years were very pleasantly spent in very congenial work. During this time I was honored by an election to the executive committee of the Headmasters' Association of Western Massachusetts and by an election to the office of vice-president of the Teachers' Association of Hampshire County. I got into politics for a short spell and was elected a delegate to the Hampshire County Republican Legislative District Convention after a hard contest. While in Ware, I found time enough to get a great deal of enjoyment out of the Study Club, Masonic Club, and Golf Club. In May, 1907, I decided to give up teaching, and take up the study of law. I accordingly resigned my position in Ware and made preparations to enter the Harvard Law School. I found 1907 a year of most unpleasant memories financially. With so many good Americans in that year I almost went broke, but fortunately a position opened up at Mercersburg Academy just at the opportune time and I escaped with my life if not with my property.

"At Mercersburg Academy I remained two years. During this time I was connected with the department of mathematics, preparing those boys who intended to enter Yale, Harvard, and other New England colleges. I acted as dean of Louck's Hall, manager of the school publications, and coach of the Marshall Debating Team. The boys of the school by their suffrages made me a member of the Academy Senate.

"On November 1, 1909, I came to Pittsburgh to enter the employ of the Pittsburgh-Buffalo Company. This firm is one of the largest independent coal corporations in the soft coal region. I am trying to learn the business, having started in the most subordinate way possible. Unfortunately I have been located for the most part in those sections of the country where Yale men are few in number. Very rarely have I ever had the opportunity to meet a classmate except in New Haven. Whittlesey, Taylor, Bruce, Thompson, Rice, and Watson, I have met most frequently."

Henry Hubbard Wells

Residence, Brewster, N. Y.

Business address, 5 Court Street, White Plains, N. Y.

Born January 25, 1877, in Brewster, Putnam County, N. Y., the son of Frank Wells and Caroline C. (Crosby) Wells. His father, born September 2, 1842, in Litchfield, Conn., and attended the Gunnery School in Washington, Conn., is a banker, now president of the First National Bank of Brewsters, and captain of Company I, Thirteenth Connecticut Volunteers. His mother was born August 26, 1851, in Milltown, Putnam County, N. Y., and resided in Brewster, N. Y., before her marriage. At one time she was a member of Drew Seminary, in Carmel, N. Y. Four cousins have attended Yale; John Tomlinson Hubbard, '80, Philip Parley Hubbard, '85, Frank Wells Hubbard, '88, and Donald Judson Warner, '06.

He prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and in college was a member of Zeta Psi. He entered the Ninth Company Volunteer Signal Corps at the end of Sophomore year (June, 1898), and went to Porto Rico during the Spanish War. He was appointed first class sergeant on June 20, 1898.

He is unmarried.

Wells is a lawyer with offices at 5 Court Street, White Plains, N. Y. He writes:

"I entered the New York Law School in the fall of 1901, and left in the spring of 1902, without graduating, and studied in the law office of Frederic S. Barnum in Brewster, N. Y. Was admitted to New York Bar in 1903. In 1908 was made vice-president of First National Bank of Brewsters. In 1909 was commander of Thomas H. Fitzgerald Camp No. 79, United States Spanish War Veterans in White Plains. (My residence has always been Brewster. My office 5 Court Street, White Plains.) In 1908 was senior-warden, and in 1909 master of Croton Lodge, No. 368, being the Masonic Lodge in Brewster. I am a member of Yale Club, White Plains Club, Masonic Lodge, Spanish War Veterans, and the military order of the Loyal Legion. He became assistant editor of the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Society in August, 1904; associate editor in 1907; and managing editor in 1909.

He is a member of the Congregational Club of Boston. As for his travels he “stayed at home and sawed wood” and says that “running the lawn mower and hoeing corn” are his favorite sports. The classmates that he has met most frequently are McKenzie, Taylor, and Sykes.

George Hoyt Whipple

Address, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md.

Born August 28, 1878, in Ashland, N. H., the son of Dr. Ashley Cooper Whipple and Frances Anne (Hoyt) Whipple. His father, born February 4, 1852, in New London, N. H., was a physician and has received degrees from the Dartmouth Medical School and the University of New York. His mother was born June 15, 1857, in Holderness, N. H., and resided in that place before her marriage. An uncle, Sherman Leland Whipple, graduated from Yale with the Class of '81.

He prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college specialized in physics and chemistry. He was a member of the University Gym Team for three years, and won his "Y" in Senior year. He received honors in biology and physiological chemistry.

He is unmarried.

From 1900 to 1901, Whipple was instructor at Holbrook's Military School in Ossining, N. Y. From 1901 to 1905, he was a student at Johns Hopkins Medical School, and received the degree of M.D. in 1905. During 1906 and 1907 he was assistant pathologist instructor and assistant resident pathologist in Johns Hopkins Medical School, and pathologist at the Bay View Asylum. In 1908 he was pathologist at the Ancon Hospital in Panama, C. Z.; in 1909 was an associate in pathology in Johns Hopkins Medical School and during the summer studied at Professor Krehl's Laboratory in Heidelberg. Since that time he has been associated in pathology and resident pathologist at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

George Newell Whittlesey

Residence, 53 Pineapple Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Business address, 71 Broadway, New York City.

Born January 1, 1879, in Creston, Iowa, the son of the late Rev. Nathan Hart Whittlesey, Yale '71, and Harriet Warner (Newell) Whittlesey. His father, born April 19, 1848, in New Preston, Conn., was a Congregational minister in Creston, Iowa, from 1875 to 1886, and was in Evanston, Ill., from 1886 to 1892. From that time until his death in 1901, he was secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relief of the National Council (Congregational). He received the degrees of B.D. from Yale Divinity School in 1875, and D.D. from Illinois College in 1890. His mother was born July 28, 1849, in New Haven, Conn., and resided in that place before her marriage. Two brothers graduated from Yale: Richard Edmond Whittlesey, '06, and William Sheldon Whittlesey, '07.

He prepared at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, Conn., and in college won the Berkeley Premium in Latin composition. He was pitcher for the Freshman Baseball Team and a substitute on the University Team from 1898 to 1900. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Yale Band, and the New Haven Symphony Orchestra.

He was married in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 3, 1911, to Miss Geraldine Noël, daughter of the late Comdr. York Noël of the United States Navy.

After graduation Whittlesey traveled in Germany, England, and France for four months in connection with tutoring. He was tutoring in Washington, D. C., from December, 1900, to May 1, 1901. In 1901 he entered the Yale Law School and in 1903 graduated, receiving LL.B. magna cum laude. He prepared at Cutler School, New York City, and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and in college specialized in finance. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Psi Upsilon and rowed on the Freshman and Varsity crews.

Wickes is general agent of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Boston, Mass., for Central New York and is located with headquarters in Syracuse, N. Y. He writes:

"I went into Wall Street the fall after graduation and was under my uncle, W. S. Alley, a member of the New York Stock Exchange. I then went with Redmond, Kerr & Company and early in the spring of 1902 took a position with the Home Life Insurance Company of New York, where I was later assistant cashier. Doing auditing work among the agencies threw me gradually into that end of the business and after working about two years under the superintendent of agencies, I took the general agency for the Home early in 1908 for Missouri with headquarters in St. Louis. I resigned there last June and came with the New England Company, July first, and as far as I know expect to stay here in Syracuse indefinitely."

Residence, 1124 Tenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Business address, Care General Land Office, Washington, D. C.

Permanent mail address, Care Dr. Rees Williams, 108 West Eighteenth Street, Cheyenne, Wyo.

Born December 10, 1876, in Standing Stone, Pa., the son of Dr. Rees Williams, St. Lawrence '73, and Florence (Kingsley) Williams. His father is a dentist and was born September 14, 1845, in Aberystwyth, Wales. He served for three years in the Union Army during the Civil War as a non-commissioned officer and later as a commissioned officer; was wounded four times and received his first commission for gallantry at the battle of Piedmont, June 5, 1863; was taken prisoner while disabled by wounds but exchanged after several months; and was brevetted captain at the close of the war. Later he studied and taught in various schools in Ohio and Missouri. He then went to the St. Lawrence University and studied for the ministry. Dr. Williams gave this up and studied dentistry in Philadelphia. His mother was born November 11, 1850, in Standing Stone, Bradford County, Pa., and attended Clinton Liberal Institute of Clinton, N. Y., about 1869.

He prepared at the Cheyenne (Wyo.) High School, and at Cutler Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo., and in college specialized in English. He received Junior and Senior Oration appointments and one year honors in English.

He is unmarried.

Williams is a lawyer and is law clerk in the United States General Land Office. He writes:

"During the school year of 1900 to 1901, I was principal of the public schools of the town of Wheatland, Wyo. In September, 1901, I went to Lincoln, Neb., and took up the study of law in the State University, remaining there two years and receiving the degree of LL.B. on June 11, 1903. Following this, I returned to my home in Cheyenne, Wyo., where I remained until the following spring. In April, 1904, I went to Southeastern Kansas. It was my intention to practice law in Independence, or some other town in that vicinity, and I took the state bar examination and was admitted to practice, but later I decided not to remain, and returned to Cheyenne. I had previously taken the United States Civil Service examination for the position of law clerk, and in January, 1905, I was offered an appointment in the General Land Office, which I accepted. I began my work there on February 1, 1905, and have since received three other appointments, by promotion, in the same bureau, viz.; on November 22, 1905, October 1, 1906, and June 15, 1909. After coming to Washington I continued the study of law in the George Washington University, and received the degree of LL.M. on June 6, 1906.

"My travels have included a trip from Washington to Portland, Ore., in November, 1908, and several trips to New York City, at various times. My favorite recreations are reading and walking. The classmates whom I have seen most frequently are McGouldrick and Stack."

Since 1905 he has been president of the Ferro Machine & Foundry Company of Kansas City, Mo.

Malcolm Day Rudd

Address, Lakeville, Conn.

Born April 3, 1877, in Lakeville, Conn., the son of the late William Beardslee Rudd and Maria Coffing (Holley) Rudd.

He prepared at Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and left college in February of Freshman year.

He was married August 26, 1903, in Gloucester, Mass., to Miss Eva Lendall Cook, Smith '96, daughter of Col. B. F. Cook of Gloucester, Mass. They have three sons.

Rudd is treasurer and general manager of the Holley Manufacturing Company, makers of pocket cutlery, etc. He writes:

"My connection with the college was of such short duration that more than the mere mention of it would be superfluous. Hence this blank has not been filled in detail. My chief purpose in filling it at all, is that my name may be entered correctly in the Record. My initials are M. D. but through some clerical error years ago they were entered as E. D., and I have received communications from time to time addressed to 'E. D. Rudd,' a first class name doubtless, but not mine. Please rectify the error, and 'all will be forgiven.'"

Hermann Shaffer

Address, Fort Washington, Pa.

Born January 17, 1877, in Fort Washington, Pa., the son of William Shaffer and Rebecca (Nash) Shaffer, Pennsylvania Female College (Ursinus) '65. His father, an agriculturist and the owner of Shaffer Farms, was born August 7, 1847, in Fort Washington, Pa. His mother was born February 20, 1843, in Fort Washington, and resided in that place before her marriage. A cousin, William Milton Hess, graduated from Yale in the Class of '96.

He prepared at Everton Seminary, Fort Washington, Pa., and at the Friends Central School, Philadelphia, Pa., and in college specialized in chemistry, physics, and German.

He was married September 15, 1903, in East Haddam, Conn., to Miss Louise Cannon Bradley, Smith '02, daughter of the late F. S. Bradley, Yale '61, a merchant and banker of New Haven, Conn. They have one son: Howard Shaffer, born May 22, 1909, in Glenside, Pa.

Shaffer is associate superintendent and supply preacher, and is connected with the Shaffer Farms, in Fort Washington. He writes:

"Entered Yale Divinity School on leaving Yale College, staying one year. I then took a year and a fraction at Berkeley Divinity School, in Middletown, Conn. I entered the Senior Class at the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School in Philadelphia, graduating with the Class of 1904. After my ordination in 1905, I was sent as missionary to two rural congregations of the Episcopal Communion in Bucks County, Pa. I was then elected rector of St. James' Church, Newport, Del., with mission chapels in Stanton, Del., and Marshallton, Del. I resigned this work in 1908, and am at the present writing engaged in a combination of activities; some projects are professional and some lay. I see very few Yale men in this part of the country, as most of the college fraternity belong to our numerous Pennsylvania colleges, such as Lafayette, Lehigh, Pennsylvania, Swarthmore, Princeton and others. Nevertheless, I am convinced Yale is the 'best of the bunch,' though my brother, Earl Shaffer, Harvard '10, says 'Harvard's still in the race.' All hail to Yale, and especially to 1900."

David Darrow Tenney

Residence, 2112 Pillsbury Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

Business address, 803 Chamber of Commerce, Minneapolis, Minn.

Born August 15, 1877, in Corning, Iowa, the son of William Mitchell Tenney and Julia Wilcox (McNair) Tenney. His father, president of the Clifton Manufacturing Company of Boston, Mass., was born January 12, 1843, in Washington, D. C. His mother was born January 11, 1845, in Kalamazoo, Mich., and resided in Washington, D. C., before her marriage.

He prepared at Lawrenceville School, Lawrenceville, N. J., and in college was treasurer of the Freshman Baseball Association, member of the Freshman Religious Committee, made the first competition News, and was a member of the Yale Battery during the Spanish War. He left college in the spring of Sophomore year.

He was married June 2, 1909, in Minneapolis, Minn., to Miss Florence Hall Shevlin, Smith ex-'09, daughter of Thomas H. Shevlin, a lumber man of Minneapolis, Minn.

Tenney is manager of the Andrews Grain Company, grain merchants. He writes:

"I left college in the spring of Sophomore year when first call for volunteers for the Spanish War was issued. When the Yale Battery was formed mine was the sixtieth name on the list. When that organization through a twist in state politics was merged into Battery A, Connecticut Light Artillery, only fifty men were taken. But later ten more men were called for to fill the other platoons. So for a few days—till the examining surgeon got me—I had the honor to serve with the Yale Battery. On my return to New Haven, Dr. Tommy Russell pronounced my heart O. K., so that barrier removed I accepted a commission from Governor Clough of Minnesota as second lieutenant and was assigned to Company K, Seventy-fifth Regiment, Minnesota Volunteer Infantry. In July, 1898, made battalion adjutant in same regiment. We were camped in Minnesota at Camp Ramsey and Camp Snelling until September 15, 1898. Moved then to Camp Meade near Harrisburg, Pa., remaining till November 15, 1898; then went to Camp Mackenzie, Augusta, Ga., remaining there until mustered out on March 27, 1899. Our regiment was Second Army Corps, First Division, Third Brigade.

"Returned to Minneapolis to work, first with my father, then under the firm name William M. Tenney Lumber Company, but left in August, 1899, to learn the grain business, starting as a car sampler and bookkeeper for the Peavey Elevator Company till August, 1902. Then I tried a year of banking as correspondence clerk and assistant teller in National Bank of Commerce. August, 1903, saw me back in the grain business, this time first as buyer and grain agent in Berthold, N. D., a new western town, and later as traveling superintendent for the Anchor Grain Company. In August, 1907, resigned my position on the road to become wheat salesman on the floor (Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce) for Van Dusen Harrington Company, until August, 1907, when for a year I was secretary and treasurer of their Atlas Elevator Company. In June, 1908, I resigned to take the position of manager of the Andrews Grain Company. Am a member of the Minneapolis, Minnikahda, and Lafayette clubs."

Lyndon Blaine Tewksbury

Residence, 3 A Fairfield Street, Roslindale District, Boston, Mass.

Business address, 643 Atlantic Avenue, Boston, Mass.

Born April 29, 1878, in Bangor, Me., the son of Joseph Francis Tewksbury and Annie Helen (Foster) Tewksbury. His father was a hardware salesman and was born December 25, 1837, in Falmouth, Me. His mother was born March 8, 1853, in Cherryfield, Me., and resided in Bangor, Me., before her marriage.

He prepared at the Bangor (Me.) High School and was with the Class until December of Freshman year, later becoming a member of the Class of '02.

He is unmarried.

Tewksbury is a (local and traveling) salesman for the Spaulding & Tewksbury Company. He writes:

"Since leaving Yale I have lived in Boston, Mass., Cleveland, Ohio, and Rochester, N. Y., returning to old Boston in 1909. My work has been chiefly for card index and filing device houses till October, 1909, when I entered an entirely new line of business. My interest has always centered in paper of one form or another, however, and my work has ranged from being a paper stock-keeper to the present occupation of selling box boards. Leaving Yale in 1900, spent summer at my parents' home in Bangor, then entered employ of the Library Bureau in Boston in the fall. After six years work there, I went to Cleveland, Ohio, as salesman for the Yawman & Erbe Manufacturing Company. In the spring of 1907, they transferred me to Massachusetts territory and later to the Boston selling force. Again in 1908, they transferred me to their home office in Rochester, N. Y., as sales correspondent dealing chiefly with their agencies. After a year's work here I made almost an entire departure from familiar lines, going to the Spaulding & Tewksbury Company in Boston, as paper box-board salesman. Have found my changes constantly to my advantage and find congenial acquaintances at every turn. Occasionally meet John Walter Decrow in Boston and find Yale men whom I know wherever I go."

John Nelson Williams

Residence, 454 West 164th Street, New York City.

Permanent mail address, Care of Dr. John N. Williams, Bedford Village, N. Y.

Born January 28, 1876, in Bedford, Westchester County, N. Y., the son of Scott Williams and Sarah Jane (Scofield) Williams. His father, a farmer and miller, was born in 1829, in New York City. His mother was born in 1836, in Poundridge, Westchester County, N. Y., and was a resident of that place before her marriage.

He prepared at the Yonkers (N. Y.) High School and remained only a short time with the Class.

He is unmarried.

After leaving college Williams attended Columbia College, receiving the degree of B.A. in 1900. He then went to the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City, graduating with the degree of M.D. in 1903. At present he is a practicing physician with offices at 454 West 164th Street, New York City.
